Clean Air Seekers

Moving To Oregon

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Seekers of clean air and wide open spaces apparently still are moving to Oregon despite a campaign by some residents—including the governor—to discourage new settlers.

Early this year, Gov. Tom McCall, in a nationwide television broadcast, told the rest of the nation: "Come visit us again and again. This is a state of excitement. But for heaven's sake, don't come here to live."

McCall said his statements were "an expression of hope that overpopulation and over-industrialization would not throw Oregon into the situation so many other states face today. Their overcrowding, overpopulation, lack of breathing space and overtaxed recreational facilities take the zest out of life."

The statements infuriated nonresidents. One wrote to call it "unmitigated gall." Others have written to say they'll live where they please.

Some Oregonians also are upset. Phil Bladine, president of the Associated Oregon Industries, said recently, "I'm quite unhappy over top state officials creating the atmosphere that Oregon is inhospitable. I talked to people from as far away as Georgia and they've asked me if it's true that Oregon doesn't want to increase its economic growth."

Still the people come. A Field Research Corp. survey published in July said nearly one-third of California's residents, many disillusioned with pollution and overcrowding, want to leave the state. First on the list of places they wanted to go was Oregon.

Oregon officials say the state's population is about 2,090,000. Since Oregon's area is 96,209 square miles this means about 22 persons to the square mile.

California's population in the 1970 census was 19,715,490. Its area is 156,537 square miles for a density of about 126 persons to the square mile.

The idea of discouraging settlers in Oregon isn't new. The late Northwest author Stewart Holbrook originated the James G. Blaine Society, whose purpose was to make the Northwest seem as forbidding as possible.

The Blaine Society still more of a philosophy than an organization was incorporated this year by a Portland freelance writer, Ron Abell.

Holbrook suggested that people develop "vague, but sinister" ways of discouraging new residents. One of his favorite devices was to insist that it rains all of the time in Oregon.

PERISCOPE

Q. Why, since Warren County is such a generous contributor to the Bradford Airport, is its name not included on the sign? R.H.

A. It is. The next time you drive out to the airport note the new, large, white sign at the entrance. There you will find listed in alphabetical order, the four counties that support the facility: Cameron, Elk, McKean and Warren. However, the sign on the administration building still reads Bradford-McKean, which was the airport's original name. In 1967 the Bradford Regional Airport Authority came into being, but due mostly to financial reasons, the metal lettering on the administration building has not yet been changed. Incidentally, Warren County contributes about one-fourth of the annual operating budget of the airport. McKean County contributes over half and Elk and Cameron counties make up the remainder.

Q. In Pennsylvania it is a requirement that all hand guns be registered. What per cent of crimes committed are solved and what per cent are solved because of the registration of the hand gun involved? L.W.A.

A. Statistics apparently are not available to completely answer this question.

Except for reporting murders, figures for all other crimes in which a weapon is used are lumped together.

Partisan Battle Looms Over Campaign Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two House committees have laid the groundwork for a potential partisan battle over two bills to limit campaign spending by national candidates.

And one Republican says President Nixon might veto any legislation that puts a ceiling on campaign spending.

One of the bills would tie a spending limit to the number of voters in a geographical area and the other would bind it to the total population. Both bills would apply to elections, primaries and prenomination campaigns.

Adding to the complications, both bills differ from an omnibus measure passed by the Senate.

The House Rules Committee has to clear either bill before it can get to a vote and that committee has set an Oct. 1 deadline for anything but emergency legislation. But Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma might be able to get that deadline changed and hook the two bills together for simultaneous consideration by the House.

The main opposition and the veto warning have come from the top GOP member of the Commerce Committee.

Rep. William L. Springer of Rhode Island says he believes the President would veto legislation that puts a ceiling on campaign spending and contributions without rigid procedures for public disclosure of where the money came from and how it was spent.

"Our bill is so full of loopholes that you could drive a truck through it," Springer said.

The Commerce bill would limit spending to 10 cents for each voter in the geographical area of the election.

This could run as high as $14 million in a nationwide campaign. Equia time would have to be provided by broadcasters to candidates for Congress if time were sold to an opponent. The cost would be the lowest unit charge for comparable time in the same period.

The equal-time requirement would not apply to candidates for president and vice-president.

Newspapers and magazines would be required to provide space for any candidate requesting it if an opponent was sold space. The charge would be the prevailing rate for "comparable use of such space for other purposes."

All campaign spending under the Administration Committee bill would be limited to six cents for each person living in the election area.

The House and Senate measures differ on details of financial reporting individual contributions to candidates' committees, and spending of personal funds by the candidates themselves.

Byrd Leads For High Court Nomination

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Evidence mounted Sunday that President Nixon's first choice for nomination to the Supreme Court is Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, and that if his name is submitted to the Senate for confirmation it will pass easily.

The good confirmation prospects of the conservative West Virginia Democrat were indicated by the implied endorsement of Byrd by George McGovern of South Dakota, a leading Senate liberal, and by predictions of other senators.

Sources in West Virginia familiar with some of the details of the President's conversation with Byrd last Friday described the prospect that Nixon will pick Byrd as "excellent."

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, a W. Va., Dem., at whose invitation the President flew on Friday to the Mountain State Forest Festival at Elkins, W. Va.—with Byrd as a passenger in the White House plane—was quoted Sunday as having said Byrd's nomination "looks very good."

Byrd's senior colleague in the Senate, Sen. Jennings Randolph, a Democrat, was also said to be "optimistic" about a Byrd nomination.

Byrd himself was making no comment on the increased pace of speculation on his nomination, and White House officials added nothing to Saturday's confirmation that Byrd's name was one of several before the President.

One element said to be included in Republican political calculations about a Byrd nomination was that Byrd should resign his Senate seat, it would be filled until the 1972 election by an appointee of Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., a Republican. A Republican appointee would reduce the 55-to-45 Democratic majority in the Senate room 54 to 46.

Furthermore, Moore is known to be extremely eager to run for a Senate seat next year, a course that West Virginia Republicans concede would be effectively barred to him unless Byrd or Randolph, both well-entrenched, were to resign or retire.

Agnew Leaves On New Tour For Iran, Turkey And Greece

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew left Sunday for Ankara, Turkey, beginning a 13-day journey that will take him also to Iran, for the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian monarchy, and to Greece, his father's native land.

Agnew took off from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., aboard a presidential jet, with his wife, seven aides, four State Department assistants, and a sheaf of loose-leaf briefing books on the governments and the officials he will visit.

He is to land in Ankara at mid-morning Monday.

On his two-day visit to Ankara he is likely to be greeted correctly but coolly by the government. The Turkish Foreign Ministry has noted that Agnew is visiting "at his own request."

There is a suspicion in Ankara that the visit is on Agnew's itinerary only because he wants to go to Greece, and couldn't bypass Turkey without risking complaints about favoritism.

Turkey and Greece are allied in NATO, but they are uneasy partners. The alliance is listed as a chief topic for Agnew's conversations in both Ankara and Athens.

Agnew's visit to Turkey also could be affected by a potential crisis in the government of Prime Minister Nihat Erim, with whom the vice president is to confer late Monday.

The Justice Party, Turkey's biggest, has announced that its five ministers are quitting Erim's Cabinet.

Agnew is to meet with President Cevdet Sunay and visit the Turkish Parliament on Tuesday.

Wednesday, Agnew flies to Shiraz, in the desert of Iran, where Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has erected a star-shaped tent city for scores of foreign leaders invited to celebrate the anniversary of the monarchy.

Agnew will spend two days there, in a tent with marble bath, but near the bottom of a protocol list headed by kings, queens and heads of state.

Exiled King Constantine II of Greece, who left his homeland when the current military government seized power four years ago, also is on the guest list.

WASHINGTON — Satellite photos of the Soviet Union have uncovered evidence of a substantial build-up of more and better strategic nuclear weapons.

The new information showed that the Soviet Union is still building two new classes of large missile silos, constructing a third type of new silo, and is doubling the production facilities for missile submarines.

Some officials in the State and Defense Departments and White House said this buildup provides greater urgency to the need to secure at least a first-step arms control agreement as soon as possible.

Others throughout the government privately stressed that unless this buildup is stopped soon, the United States might feel impelled to expand its own nuclear arsenal to maintain the balance of strategic power between the two nations.

A senior Pentagon official, pressed for details on the extent and character of the Soviet nuclear program, insisted that the arms-control talks were at such a delicate stage that the Defense Department did not intend to provide details of the build-up until its next annual report to Congress in February.

Other officials in various government departments were sufficiently concerned, however, to sketch out some details of the Soviet build-up.

The reconnaissance satellites have found that the number of silos of two different sizes generally believed designed for improved or entirely new long-range missiles now exceeds 90—up from the 10 silos spotted early this year and the 60 seen in mid-summer. The inner dimensions of the smaller of these silos is significantly larger than the 10-foot diameter of the Soviet Union's largest operational missile, the SS-9.

A third type of silo, larger than any of the others, has been sighted, with one each at several different missile complexes. Analysts believe the new holes are destined either for a special purpose new missile or a new type of command and control facility.

The Soviet Union now has about 41 Y-Class missile submarines operational or under construction, thus drawing abreast of the American Polaris submarine force. The new intelligence findings indicate a doubling of the size of the Soviet's principal nuclear submarine construction yard at Severodvinsk, on the White Sea.

The total number of Soviet Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles, operational or under

London Bridge Dedicated In New American Home

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Shorter and humplier than when it spanned the Thames River, the London Bridge was formally restored to service in the Arizona desert Sunday.

The Lord Mayor of London, Sir Peter Studd, and Arizona Gov. Jack Williams hailed the reconstructed 140-year-old bridge as a symbol of friendship between England and the United States.

A 70-foot balloon lifted into the air after the dedication speeches, releasing 3,000 pigeons and 30,000 balloons above a parade depicting the history of the bridge.

The dedication climaxed two days which included canoe and water ski races, fireworks, stunt flying and a black tie banquet for 700 which ended early Sunday morning.

The town of 8,000 developed by the McCulloch Corp., on Lake Havasu in the Arizona-California line, joined in the celebration. Residents dressed in Elizabethan costumes and some stores changed their names. For example, Lake Havasu Pharmacy became the "London Apothecary."

Normal Hall, a director of the City of London Corp., which sold the bridge to McCulloch for $2.4 million, said the bridge was recognizable and said he was pleased to see it put to use. But, he noted changes in its appearance.

"It has a little higher arch in the center, it's humplier," Hall said. "They left off about 50 feet at one end which was an overpass for a street on the Surrey side."

"It already looks cleaner in the Arizona sun and I understand that you have sandstorms that might actually clean it more," Hall said.

The five-arch, 952-foot bridge, was reassembled over a new concrete superstructure on the neck of a peninsula extending into the lake. Then a channel was dug beneath it.

The bridge becomes a part of the town's main thoroughfare, leading to an airport

WARREN'S ACTION PLAN-Part V

Planning Dollars And Sense

By PAUL REICHAUT

We're not trying to hide the fact that the proposed action plan studies will cost money. Planning is expensive—if not coordinated with future development expectations it can even be a waste.

Frequently in the past consultants have been hired to churn out this study or that about unrelated segments of an undefined community development plan. Needless to say it's like making blue prints for a steeple with no consideration for the looks of the church.

What we're trying to say is you've got to plan planning.

According to Kendree and Shepherd's proposal the whole program will cost $39,300—much of which can be returned in federal or state funding. If the planning is implemented as proposed it may just be the best investment the borough ever made.

Take the example of the Borough Master Plan. Updating the plan will cost $6,600. Half of this total may be returned eventually by the Department of Community Affairs in the form of a State Planning Assistance Grant (SPAG), leaving the borough with a bill of $3,300.

By updating the master plan the borough will make itself eligible for federal and state funding of many types. HUD, one of the major planning funding agencies, asks, in its Application for Workable Plan Recertification, what condition the master plan is in. If the borough is unable to answer the question to the satisfaction of HUD officials it may fail to qualify for several major grants.

The action plan carries a price tag of $13,200 (without the optional $3,000 design recommendations we outlined in part 2 of this series). Some of this, about $2,100 worth could also be financed through SPAG grants.

The rest, $11,100, would fall onto the borough's shoulders. This represents nearly half of all the cash the taxpayers will have to provide for the complete study.

The traffic studies and engineering designs might have cost close to $20,000 but for the capabilities of the borough planning staff.

They agreed to do much of the legwork themselves so that the consultants actual fee has been sliced to $16,500. Nearly two thirds of this figure could be financed by TOPICS grants (Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety) leaving the borough with a bill for $6,325.

This brings the borough's total share to $23,725, if all the expected grants come through. The total will be spread over 1971 and 1972 with 80 per cent of the total due next year. If the plan is ever revised this may change, however, since it has been delayed.

Kendree and Shepherd, in their contract agreement, made it perfectly clear that they cannot guarantee the grants will come through as expected.

Break Ground For Inter-Faith Chapel Friday

On Friday, Oct. 15, at 1 p.m., groundbreaking ceremonies will be held for the new "Specialized Therapeutic Activity Facility" at Warren State Hospital, Warren.

This event will mark the start of construction on a $600,000 building complex which will incorporate a large Inter-Faith Chapel, three separate connecting chapels for Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish services, and office, social and therapeutic rehabilitation activity areas.

The Rev. Msgr. Alfred Bauer, St. Joseph Church, Warren, will give the invocation. Father Mark Roueche, Catholic chaplain, will serve as master of ceremonies. Dr. Harold J. Reinhard, superintendent, Warren State Hospital, will offer greetings. Harry Segel, Warren Hebrew Congregation, will read the scripture. Brief remarks will be made by the following: Charles M. Blum, deputy executive director, General State Authority; Dr. Gabriel Chimenti, president of the Inter-Faith Committee; George Fehrenbach, president of the Board of Trustees, State Sen. Richard C. Frame, and the most Rev. Alfred M. Watson, Bishop of Erie.

The prayer of ground-breaking will be led by the Rev. Franklin Hagberg, Protestant Chaplain at the hospital and the Rev. Wayne Price will give the benediction.

Approximately seven years ago, an independent group from Warren that included businessmen, lawyers, bankers and clergy, and the Warren State Hospital chaplains, initiated a campaign to establish an Inter-Faith Center for the patients at Warren State Hospital.

They canvassed 13 counties in Northwestern Pennsylvania and were successful in raising over a quarter of a million dollars, the largest gift being from the then Bishop of Erie, John Mark Gannon, who donated $50,000.

Still faced with the problem of not having enough funds, the committee solicited the aid of Senator Frame who presented the project to the state legislature and acquired the extra funds needed for the combined Inter-Faith Center and Therapeutic Activities Building.

The one-story masonry, brick and stone complex was designed by Arland A. Dirlam of Boston and is scheduled for completion in Sept. 1972.

Warren State Hospital is operated by the Department of Public Welfare. It serves mentally ill residents of Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Warren, Venango, Forest, Clarion, McKean, Potter, Elk, Cameron, Jefferson and Clearfield counties.

Secrecy Creates Distrust

One doesn't have to delve too deeply into the business being conducted in the nation's capital by various bureaucratic agencies before being confronted by files marked "confidential" or some similar classification that indicates that the public's desire for information is denied, absolutely. And the fact is, this epidemic for "secrecy" pervades a wide variety of government activities other than those concerned with the national security.

But about the most blatant example of the extremes to which the craze for secrecy is being carried came to light when a student, doing research toward a PhD degree, was denied access to certain files in the National Archives dating back to the early years of the Twentieth Century because they had been "stamped" by the Bureau of Investigation. His area of interest was "pollution" and the files he sought related to this subject.

In a letter to Senator Lee Metcalf, the student said, "I feel ridiculous even suggesting that the nation's security could be threatened by information 70 years passed, but apparently somebody does."

The problem of bureaucratic secrecy attracted the attention of Congress some time ago and eventually led to the passage of the Freedom of Information Act some 5 years ago. It was the desire of Congress, the elected representatives of the people, that all but the most vital information would be readily available to the public. Yet, hardly a bureau in Washington hasn't thumbed its nose at the "Freedom" act and continued their classified files.

Regarding the problem, Senator Metcalf, has said, "If we allow this display of contempt and distrust of the people to continue, the results will be tragic; surely the American people will react to their government's lack of faith in them by returning contempt and distrust for their leaders and their political institutions. If ever that day arrives, our nation's continued existence as a democracy will be imperiled."

There can be little question in any observer's mind that in some way, through whatever means possible, the arrogance presently being displayed by the bureaucratic servants of the public must be crushed, or, as the Senator says, our democratic form of government will be imperiled. If, in many respects, it isn't already imperiled by the demagoguery of the bureaucratic system.

OBSERVER:

Omnisportence

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON —There had been scattered reports, largely ignored or disbelieved, of sudden displacements for several months before the thing became a national embarrassment. A welder in Cos Cob, Conn., told the press that while watching a football game on his set one July afternoon he saw a hockey player suddenly skate onto the gridiron, intercept a pass and slam the ball into the net for a touchdown.

Such reports were typical of the early incidents. A steeplejack in Fargo said that he set had suddenly shown Wilt Chamberlain dribbling a baseball. A pastry chef in Paducah told of watching a shortstop kick off for Notre Dame. It is now known that many persons probably witnessed these displacements, but kept quiet about them because they did not want everybody saying they drank too much.

Whatever the explanation, no one was prepared for the first major incident which occurred just before dawn that day on every television set tuned to the CBS network. It was an early July morning and the scheduled show—CBS's dawn game of the week—had been in progress since 5:30 a.m. The Dallas Cowboys were leading the Goose Bay Honkers by a score of 17-0 on the strength of two touchdowns and a field goal.

Dallas kicked off on the small screen to the Honkers and fans in an estimated 35 million living rooms saw Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles scoop up the ball on one bounce and whip it to Dave Johnson at second base, who threw it to Boog Powell at first for the double play, retiring the Cowboys in the top of the sixth inning.

Millions of fans drugged with sleeplessness blinked for the first time in days, because, being fans, they knew very well that the Orioles were not supposed to be on television until 10:30 that night, when they were to play the Caracas Crackers. CBS stated that this curious displacement might have resulted from heavy sun-spot activity. Two hours later, however, NBC had an even more severe shock when millions of viewers saw Joe Garagiola interviewing Willis Reed, the celebrated New York basketball player, in the dressing room of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Jack Nicklaus took a little something off his slider," Willis was saying, "and I swung. I knew it was going out of the park when I felt it hit the bat."

By nightfall there was panic in the televised sports industry. Howard Cosell and Don Meredith of ABC, who had shown up in Miami prepared to try to pump life into a football game between the Miami Dolphins and the New England Patriots, found that their monitors would show nothing but an ice hockey game between the Montreal Canadiens and Muhammad Ali.

At 2:30 a.m. the Super Duper Whooper Bowl for the Summer Basketball Championship of All Three Networks was due to begin on all three networks. If you were sitting by your TV set that morning with a refrigerator full of beer—as who was not in those days?—you still remember all too well what you saw.

"The greatest game ever played," the sports writers have called it. And no wonder. There was Fran Tarkenton's amazing last-second scramble off tackle between center court and the ring posts for the game-tying home run. Then, when Willie Mays intercepted Arnold Palmer's 25-foot putt to take the lead by two lengths over Seabiscuit, the stage was set for the magnificent, Come-From-Behind, clutch play of goalie Ken Dryden, who, refusing to give up despite melting ice and a muddy track, broke through to the dressing room and put through an emergency call to a TV repairman.

It was useless, of course. The damage was too deep to be repaired by engineering skill alone. Totally new plant, certain studies suggested, might eliminate the problem, but existing equipment—cameras, engineers, wires, relays, tubes, transmitters, monitors, lights, receiving sets, announcers, describers of play, shaving creams, tires, batteries, beer, razors, local stations, audiences—all had been so overburdened with sport during the long years of their existence that somewhere along the chain some vital link had lost the ability to discriminate.

President Nixon proposed a crash program to get sport back into focus, but desisted after engineers explained that it might require them to throw away the entire existing audience, which would include not only the President's constituents, but also the President.

In any case, as the networks soon discovered, very soon the fans seemed to prefer the jumble. They had been so sated with incredible ninth-inning rallies, fantastic last-minute gridiron victories, mythological overtime occurrences of the courts, and Cinderella stories on the ice, track, boards, canvas, grass, mat, sawdust, cinders, oval, asphalt, water, high board, snow, slopes, turf and greens, that it was a welcome change to see the winning touchdown pass gobbled up at third base by Brooks Robinson, whipped over to second and relayed to first for a brand new Indy 500 record.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON —The Pentagon has censored a brilliant young lawyer-colonel for writing that the Military Appeals Court is rigged to favor the generals over the GIs.

So badgered by his superiors was the Army lawyer, Lt. Col Charles Schiesser, that he finally removed his name from the law review article so his co-author, Dan Benson, a reserve major, could publish it free of Pentagon pressure.

What the two men found was that the court—sometimes called the "GIs' Supreme Court"—was more often a rubber stamp for the brass than a safeguard for the GIs. Generals and admirals get automatic appeals while enlisted men receive second-class justice.

The slam-bang article, to be published in the Texas Tech Law Review, praises a few aspects of the court but paraphrases St. Matthew, charging the court "has strained at gnats and swallowed camels" in its support of the brass.

The court "to a significant degree," they wrote, "has become unduly aligned with the military establishment that it was created to police." Instead of protecting the GIs, it has shown more concern "with the attitudes of the leaders of the various armed services."

Getting any injunctive relief—such as bail, habeas corpus hearings and change of venue—has been a "Catch 22" proposition, they said. Only four enlisted defendants got such breaks in 20 years.

Despite such sizzling comment, the Army Judge Advocate General's office at first approved the article. It was bucked to Defense Secretary Mel Laird's security and review office with an Army "recommendation for public release."

But at this level, according to a memo from Schiesser to the Army, "an objection was voiced." The Army quickly backed down on its approval and ordered two major changes.

FIXHINTED, ERASED

One stated objection concerned a sentence in which Schiesser and Benson said "William H. Darden was appointed to the court at the request of Senator Richard Russell, a well-known partisan of the armed forces."

Another objection was raised to a sentence that only Judge Homer Ferguson of all the court's jurists "has consistently demonstrated healthy skepticism toward the military."

To get the article approved, Schiesser agreed to remove any reference to Russell's "fix" and to soften the statement on Ferguson's isolation.

But what wasn't good enough. A few days later, the Army's Assistant Judge Advocate General, Brig. Gen. Larry Williams, suggested a complete rewrite in order not to "cast improper aspersions on members of the court, living or dead." We have a "Dear Chuck" memo to Schiesser signed by Williams, telling of the conversation.

Three days later, Schiesser wrote the Texas Tech Law Review saying that if the Defense Department failed to "clear the article...within your allotted time limit, please remove my name as an author." Footnote: The Pentagon claims that Schiesser simply did not have time to revise the article and therefore had his name pulled. Although this is false, Schiesser has gone along to keep from endangering his career. When we talked with him, he declined all comment.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Dry Run—Three weeks ago, we got wind that Air Force One, the presidential plane, was secretly scheduled for a flight to Peking in late October. We doubted our own information, since intelligence reports told of turmoil at the top in Peking. We called Henry Kissinger, the White House aide who had arranged the presidential visit. He assured us that the date for President Nixon's trip hadn't been set and that it certainly wouldn't be as early as October. A few days later, the White House announced that Air Force One, indeed, will fly to Peking later this month with Kissinger as the chief passenger. It will be a dry run for the Nixon visit. Such presidential nursemaids as Dwight Chapin and Tim Elbourne will go along to check out the accommodations. The last time they were in the Far East, they were overheard by the Philippines' President Ferdinand Marcos complaining about the accommodations. Marcos told them sharply that Nixon could skip the Philippines if they didn't like the arrangements. It will be interesting to see how the two tenderfoots get along with the Chinese.

Magnuson Weakens—Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., the gallant old warrior who has stood off so many assaults by the special interests, has finally buckled to the natural gas lobby. Magnuson, without holding hearings, is rushing through his Commerce Committee a bill that would give El Paso Natural Gas a stranglehold on huge chunks of the West Coast natural gas market. The Supreme Court has ruled against El Paso time and time again. But the gigantic utility mobilized a campaign in Washington State that forced Magnuson at last to capitulate and introduce a bill to overturn the Court's decision. The campaign, of course, was paid for directly by El Paso's customers.

Zoo Controversy—An animal importer, Fred Zeehandelaar of New Rochelle, N.Y., has called our column on inhumanity to zoo animals, untimely and "uncalled for." He says a new federal law "is already taking care of this matter." His statement, widely printed in "Letters to the Editor" columns, places too much faith in a piece of paper. While the Federal Animal Welfare Act of 1970 has laudable aims, it lacks both funds and personnel. Even its backers concede that the new law, without more government action, will have the teeth of a worm, the might of a gnat and the enforcement power of a clam.

Out Of An Affliction —A Miracle

Marilyn Rose has one of those bright faces which remain young forever. She has shiny dark hair, onyx pools in her eyes and a big friendly smile. In 1955, she worked as a secretary at Lederle Laboratories in Pearl River, New York. She had a home, a husband, a daughter.

One day she developed a boil on her eyelid. She covered it with a patch. Within three weeks, she had 67 boils over her body. Her husband became infected. Their little girl was sent to live with relatives.

Lederle, like all other great pharmaceutical laboratories, spends millions on researching new cures for old ills. One of the bacteriologists, Miss Eloise McCoy, lived next door to Marilyn Rose. "Let me take a smear from that boil on your eyelid," she said.

The cotton swab was placed in a sterile tube. The germs were cultured carefully until there were billions of them. Marilyn Rose was infected with a particularly virulent strain of staphylococcus. It was immune to all known antibiotics. The germs were sent to a team of researchers headed by Dr. James H. Boothe, whose specialty is organic medical chemistry.

Dr. Boothe called the muscular germs "Staph Rose." He injected a tiny amount into five mice and all died in 24 hours. He tried more of the stuff—same result. Marilyn Rose, the woman, recovered after intensive treatment, but Boothe had all those descendants of her germs and he felt that there must be a compound which would kill the germ without killing the patient.

Instead of searching among soil spores (the customary technique) Dr. Boothe decided to take a known compound, tetracycline, and try to modify it and train it for a one-round knockout of Staph Rose. Six years later, Boothe had nothing. Every modification tried was duly noted so that it wouldn't be tried again. In all cases, the mice died.

Dr. Michael J. Martell, a young uncluttered mind fresh out of college, joined the team. Within the first month, he had studied the molecular structure of the newest test material and suggested that a tiny tree-like substance atop molecule number four be placed atop molecule number one.

Boothe agreed. "We'll take it off four and put it on one," he said. Dr. Martell disagreed. "Put it on number one, but leave the ineffective one on four," he said. They disagreed. It sounded like a child's game of building blocks. Martell was stubborn. The tiny tree went atop number one while the useless one remained atop number four.

The new substance was tried on five mice. In the morning, the chief of the test laboratory phoned upstairs. "Somebody gooted," he said. "They forgot to inject these mice with Staph Rose. They're all racing around as happy as—well, Mickey Mouse."

Boothe and Martell studied the mice. They didn't appear to be groggy. The test was tried again. The mice didn't even become ill. The drug was named Minocin. It worked on mice, but there was a long road of tests on other creatures before it could be tried on man.

Boothe and Martell cut the dosage in half five times. The medicine was so good that all the mice recovered. Tests continued from 1961 to 1969. Ten million dollars in man hours and lab work went down the drain. In 1965, more than 200 doctors tried it on 17,000 persons. Minocin was tested and approved by the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

Marilyn Rose and her boil had come a long way. The next step was to find out if Minocin had a spectrum of efficacy. Would it be a wonder drug for ills other than a strong strain of staphylococcus?

The men at Lederle Laboratories tested it on other diseases. And lo! it turned out to have a definitive spectrum. It cured shigella, a bacillary dysentery. It also stopped typhus, an old and deadly disease. Minocin cured psittacosis, a contagion carried by parrots and parakeets.

It stopped Rocky Mountain Spotted fever and Vibrio Comma, a curving organism which causes cholera. Next week, Minocin will be shipped to pharmacies all over the world. It will take its place beside penicillin and aureomycin and acromycin and the sulfa family as microbe killers.

Marilyn Rose? She still works as a secretary at Lederle Laboratories. The little girl she had to send to relatives in fear of contamination? She was married two weeks ago...

CONGRESSIONAL IMMUNITY:

Bribery Charge Protection?

WASHINGTON —Is a U.S. Senator immune from prosecution on charges he sold his vote?

No—if Congress has passed a law specifying otherwise—lawyers for the government will argue before the Supreme Court the week of Oct. 10.

Yes—reply lawyers for Daniel B. Brewster of Maryland, a Senator from 1963 to 1969. They will argue that a lower court correctly dismissed bribery charges against Brewster in 1970.

Brewster was indicted on charges he accepted $24,000 from Spiegel Inc., the large mail-order company, in return for casting certain votes on postal rate legislation pending before a committee of which he was a member. The charges were dismissed—at the request of Brewster's attorneys—before he entered any plea in response to them.

One of the prosecutors described the dismissal of charges against Brewster as giving members of Congress "a license to steal."

Congressional Immunity The Constitution provides that Senators and Representatives "shall not be questioned in any other place" for any speech or debate in Congress.

This guarantee was won in 1688 by the British Parliament as part of a bill of rights, ending the days when the king could imprison or even put to death a Member of Parliament who made an offensive speech on the floor of the legislative chambers.

This country's founding fathers included a similar guarantee in the U.S. Constitution without debate.

Absolute Shield From a protection of individual legislators against royal intimidation, the speech-and-debate clause has been broadened by the courts into a shield against any outside interference with the legislative process.

Most obviously, the clause protects Congressmen from libel or slander suits based on remarks they make on the floor or in committee. Only the House or Senate can hold its members accountable for these statements.

In addition, courts have applied this protection to votes, reports and all other actions taken by a legislator in fulfillment of his official role. A state supreme court held in 1808 that the immunity extended to "everything said or done by him as a representative in exercise of the functions of that office, without inquiring whether the exercise was regular."

Court Decisions

In 1881 the U.S. Supreme Court adopted this reasoning and held that the Constitution protected members of Congress from a suit for false imprisonment and damages brought by a witness before a House committee. Members could not be held liable for actions taken in "due discharge of their duties as members."

In 1969 the Court reaffirmed that position by holding that members of the House were protected from a suit by former Rep. Adam C. Powell of New York, who claimed they have unconstitutionally excluded him from his seat in the 90th Congress.

Recently a federal judge held that an aide to Alaska Sen. Mike Gravel must answer a subpoena from a grand jury

Casey Probes New Area

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG —The use of the independent fund foundation as a means for handling funds and performing activities directly related to education is a new concept in the state-owned Colleges and Universities of Pennsylvania.

At the present time, there are 10 independent college foundations, one independent university foundation, two college trusts, and two independent foundations in the process of formation or already operative among these state-owned colleges and universities in the Commonwealth.

As a consequence, it is a new area into which Auditor General Robert P. Casey has moved for the first time because of the belief that no matter how sincere foundation directors are in managing foundation functions, the possibility exists for the accidental co-mingling of Commonwealth and foundation assets and liabilities.

The Auditor General is convinced a distinct separation of the colleges and the foundations is not always obvious and can create such special problems as:

- (1) the co-mingling of Commonwealth and foundation funds;
- (2) the use of Commonwealth property for the benefit of the foundations;
- (3) Commonwealth employees could be performing foundation duties on Commonwealth time;
- (4) other problems resulting from the close association of the colleges and foundations, such as the fact that officers of the college are often officers of the foundations.

Mr. Casey decided to test his authority to audit foundation operations when a specific problem arose regarding the Bloomsburg Foundation, Inc. As a result, his investigators moved into Bloomsburg State College for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the Bloomsburg Foundation.

The certified public accountants assigned by Mr. Casey to the job came up with five specific findings and made an equal number of recommendations.

In one instance, it was noted that William A. Lank, the vice president of the United Penn Bank of Wilkes-Barre and a trustee of Bloomsburg State College, is a director of the Bloomsburg Foundation Inc., as one of two board of trustees representing the college.

At the same time, Dr. Robert J. Nossen, President of both the Bloomsburg State College and the Bloomsburg Foundations, Inc. is a director of the United Penn Bank of Wilkes-Barre.

The Auditor General has recommended that "this interlocking directorship be discontinued to eliminate any actual or potential conflict of interest" pointing out that "however well-intentioned, the present inter-relationship may present situations where the interests of the bank and the interests of the college or foundation may be adverse."

"Those who serve institutions supported by public funds," he said, "should be in a position to exercise free and independent judgment as to where the public interest lies in a given situation unimpeded by any outside allegiances or duties."

Other recommendations made by the Auditor General as a result of the audit of the foundation funds included one that $6 be returned to each of 962 incoming 1971 freshmen for a test for which they were charged but which was never given—a total of $5,772. (Profits from the freshman orientation program had been transferred from the College Trust Fund to the Bloomsburg foundation; Mr. Casey said they belonged to the Commonwealth not the foundation.)

In another instance rental fees were collected by the foundation for activities conducted on Commonwealth property and he said the fees also belonged to the Commonwealth.

Two other recommendations dealt with the legality of federal grants going directly to foundations rather than to the educational institutions. The Auditor General felt that if such grants and gifts are to aid educational projects, then the control should be given to the educational entity; namely, the college.

investigating the disclosure of the once-secret Pentagon Papers, but that the grand jury could not inquire into the special subcommittee meeting at which Gravel read the papers aloud.

In a 1951 immunity ruling the Supreme Court held that the charge of an unworthy motive for a legislator's act did not destroy his immunity. Long ago, wrote Justice Felix Frankfurter for the Court, the Court held it inconsistent with the separation of powers to allow a court to inquire into the motives of a legislator.

Bribery Case The prosecution may not look into the motives, preparation or contents of a floor speech to find proof that a member of Congress has committed a crime, ruled the Court in 1966. And so former Rep. Thomas F. Johnson of Maryland, convicted on such proof of bribery and conspiracy charges, won a new trial.

No matter how reprehensible the charges, wrote Justice John Marshall Harlan for the Court, the speech-and-debate clause barred use of Johnson's speech as the basis of the conspiracy charges against him. "The essence of the charge is that the Congressman's conduct was improperly motivated, and...that is precisely what the speech-and-debate clause generally forecloses from executive and judicial inquiry."

But Harlan specifically left open the question of a prosecution "possibly entailing inquiry into legislative acts or motivations, (but)...found upon a narrowly drawn statute passed by Congress in the exercise of its legislative power to regulate the conduct of its members."

Prison Reform, Taxes, Ecology Subjects Of Bills This Week

HARRISBURG (AP) — Prison reform, taxes and ecology are subjects of bills before the legislature this week, but funeral services for U.S. Rep. James G. Fulton on Monday may delay some of the action. House Majority Leader K. Leroy Irvis, D-Allegheny, had planned to call up the reinstated good time prison reform measure, which was defeated last week. But he said that would depend on how many lawmakers are present. Some are expected to attend the funeral for Republican congressman from suburban Pittsburgh.

The Senate observing the Columbus Day holiday scheduled its first session for Tuesday. Besides the prison reform bill, the House also has before it a resolution calling for a constitutional change to permit graduated income tax. The House already passed it when it would have provided for graduating all taxes but the Senate amended the measure to apply to taxes on income only. It's up to the House now to accept or reject the Senate version.

If approved the measure will have to be held for the General Assembly of 1973 and if passed then, put to a referendum. This is the standard procedure for changing the constitution.

An all-surface mining bill, aimed at preventing land scars caused by any mining industry, is in position for final House action. It would require that miners backfill all surface mine scars.

The prison reform bill would eliminate minimum sentences and enable convicts to shorten their confinement by participating in rehabilitation programs. Persons sentenced to life would be eligible for parole after 15 years.

Vote on the measure last week was 93-65, nine votes short of the needed constitutional majority of 102. Forty-four lawmakers were recorded as not voting.

Irvis, the chief sponsor of the bill, said he thought he could muster the needed votes if the attendance were better.

Although it was defeated, a parliamentary move put the measure back on the calendar.

On a related matter, Rep. William Eckensberger, chairman of the House Law and Order Committee, said he will introduce a proposal to allow the exchange of prisoners from one state to another. It would set up an Interstate Corrections Compact.

Eckensberger, a Lehigh County Democrat, said the compacts would enable participating states to take advantage of institutions that specialize in certain types of rehabilitation.

Foresters To Discuss Ecology, Environment

COBB

Two well-known foresters in Pennsylvania will be featured Tuesday, Oct. 12 at a meeting sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forestry Assn. which will seek to answer questions about ecology and a quality environment.

Samuel Cobb, state forester, and Edward Farrand, Penn State extension forester, will attempt to answer the questions of those concerned with the diseased, dead and dying trees in the cities and along the roadsides. They will discuss the adoption of a national land use policy to provide the basis for wise land use. They will outline the accomplishments and potential of the association which has been promoting an understanding of ecology and quality environment for more than 85 years, according to Robert K. Ache, district forester, Bernard Wingert, county agent and J.K. Vessey, U.S. Forest Service retired, responsible for the meeting.

The public has been invited to attend the meeting to begin at 8 p.m. at Camp Kirkwood, located on Jackson Run rd., Rt. 69, seven-tenths of a mile west of its intersection with Rt. 62. Farrand has been a member of the Penn State staff since Feb. 1951, where he earned his master of forestry degree in 1962. He was employed by the Krumenacker Lumber Co. and the Armstrong Forest Co. and served for four years in the U.S. Army Air Force, attaining the rank of captain. Cobb is a 1939 graduate of Penn State and worked on the Allegheny National Forest in 1936 and 1937. He joined the Pennsylvania Dept. of Forests and Waters in Nov., 1939 and has since served as assistant district forester at Pottsville, district forester at Blain and Warren, as farm forester in 1946 at Wellsboro and as district forester at Bloomsburg. In 1957, he went to Harrisburg as assistant chief, division of forest protection and in 1966 was appointed state forester and director, Bureau of Forestry. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II.

McGovern Raps Phase 2, Scores Administration

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Sunday he would disregard a call by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield to hold back on criticism of President Nixon's Phase 2 economic plan until details are known.

And he scored the Nixon administration for harboring "an obsession about high wages and about inflation" while failing to recognize the problem of unemployment.

"He's had 2½ years to work out an answer to inflation and the problems of unemployment," McGovern said of Nixon. "Time is running out ... I have very grave misgivings about the President's new economic game plan and I intend to express them."

McGovern gave his views on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

"Now, the President has an obsession about high wages and inflation, but what about the fact that we have perhaps as many as nine or ten million people in this country who can't find jobs?" McGovern said. "That's the No. 1 problem, and I don't find anything in the President's economic game plan that's going to put those people back to work."

Instead of a $5 billion investment tax credit, McGovern proposed, "I would funnel that money into job-creating enterprises. For example, into the construction of public transit facilities in our cities, or into relieving local property owners by greater federal assistance for the schools."

McGovern said the administration's economic program "is still loaded in favor of big business and against the interest of people who depend on wages for their livelihood."

"The President told us the other night that high profits are a good thing for all Americans," McGovern observed. "Well, if that's true, why aren't good wages good for all Americans?"

He said he would favor imposition of an excess profits tax to attain what he called "an equality of sacrifice from the rich as well as from the poor."

McGovern said that in campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination he has had heavy support for proposals to end the war immediately and issue a general amnesty for all draft evaders.

He said that in his 15 years in politics "there is no issue that I've touched ... that has consistently caused just a great outpouring of applause and sometimes tears and shouts of joy, that has gone to the level of what we're reaching with the proposal for a general amnesty. I think the American people want this war ended, but I think they also want to heal the nation."

Damage $1,690

In 2-Car Mishap

On Rt. 6 In Tiona

Two vehicles were damaged in the amount of $1,690 at 11:49 p.m. Saturday on Rt. 6, Tiona, when one vehicle stopped suddenly to avoid hitting an unknown object in the roadway. There were no injuries.

According to Richard A. McWilliams, chief of police, Mead Township, George Jubon, 54 of Ludlow and Mario B. DeCarli, 47 of Weedville were traveling east on Rt. 6. Jubon stopped suddenly to avoid striking what he thought was a body but later proved to be a bicycle, owner unknown. DeCarli was unable to stop on the rain-slickened highway. The bicycle was destroyed.

There's something to be said for learning to live with things you can't change.

"If you can't beat 'em, join 'em," is more than a bit of folk philosophy. The old cliché appears to be the answer to many of today's problems.

Take pollution, for example. Big business and public officials seem in no hurry to enforce anti-pollution measures. The next best thing therefore, would seem to be to get it across to our youngsters that pollution, like sex, is here to stay.

And that's how come we now have an anti-pollution toy—a scientific game for children based on pollution. If the big kids won't do anything about it, let the little ones get used to it.

Enviroco, Inc. is marketing a "Pollution Test Kit" which allows kids to test their environment so they'll know the degree to which the air, soil, and water are fouled.

The reality-oriented chemistry set comes with straws, corks, test tubes, funnels, biodegradable paper, chemicals, and a magnifying glass. There's even a Ringelmann chart where you can measure smoke density by matching up the color of dangerous smoke to the corresponding section of the chart.

As long as our kids have to live in an environmental slum, they're certainly going to feel better if they not only know something is wrong—but can measure it.

The pollution game also comes with a sample complaint form and instructions on how to call or write local pollution boards with the names and addresses of violators. This provides the kids with another lesson: they learn early about dealing with public agencies and the attendant frustration when nothing happens.

College students are also finding it advantageous to join 'em if you can't beat 'em. At least on the question of term papers. The kids, you see, complain they take too much time to write, but the teachers still require them in most courses.

There is now a way for a student to produce a term paper without investing any of his time. Just a little of his money. For from $2.50 to $3.00 a page, one can now buy a paper on any subject. Some of the catering services for dissertations even guarantee an A or a B. And they take special pains to make sure that clients in the same class have different ghost-writers.

The scholars' helpers, by the way, are usually college graduates themselves, who, we may assume, find more merit in writing term papers than their customers. Not to mention money.

And lest you think we are the only country who understands the value of learning to roll with the punches, consider what is going on in India. To deal with the widespread problem of cheating on exams, the proctors have decided to do something. They are now collecting a cheating fee of 5 rupees, or 75 cents.

For the fee, students can bring books and papers in with them, roam around looking over people's shoulders, or even dictate answers to friends.

The solution has problems, however, some kids are still hanging on to their free inalienable right to cheat, and they won't pay the fee. At Calcutta University, one scholar used a dagger to convince a teacher to produce an answer for him. Another group of students drove the proctors from the room and closed the doors and windows in order to cheat in peace and quiet.

The school administrators in India are not pleased by the rampant cheating, but they're not so rigid that they can't find reasons for it. They say the courses are so intensive that NO one could master the information, and therefore the examination system is at fault.

And common sense will tell you that charging a fee to cheat is simpler than revising the curricula. More lucrative, too. The nice thing about getting problems solved is that it frees us up to tackle new ones.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Area Couple In Jamestown

Lodina Castrodale became the bride of the Rev. Eugene Lepard in a candlelight ceremony held at the Hillcrest Baptist Church in Jamestown, New York, October 9, 1971 at 2:30 p.m.

Rev. Norman Farrington, pastor of the Calvary Assembly of God Church performed the ceremony. Joseph Pontrella provided traditional organ music and Mrs. Leo Vullo, an aunt of the bride, was soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Castrodale, 167 Brad street, Jamestown, New York. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lepard, 6756 Morley road, Painesville, Ohio.

For her wedding day, the new Mrs. Lepard chose an all ivory Peau d' Soie gown featuring a scalloped scoop neckline, short sleeves, with an empire waist and an A-line skirt. The gown was highlighted by re-embroidered Alencon lace around the neckline, the sleeves and skirt of the gown.

She wore a headpiece of sheer petals with tiny white daisies which held a two-tiered veil of English illusion. She carried a cascade of white carnations and fugi mum tufts, with apricot sweetheart roses and ivy accents.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Kenneth Stoner, Hyattsville, Maryland, a cousin of the bride, wore a chiffon gown in apricot, which featured a rounded neckline, long sheer bouffant sleeves, an empire waist and A-line skirt. Her gown was highlighted by ballerina vest of Venice lace and lace cuffs.

Frances Bruculeri and Susan Tedesco, bridesmaids wore gowns of moss green styled the same as the matron of honor. The headpieces of all the attendants were bouffant butterfly veils secured to a forward of petals and loops.

The attendants carried fireside baskets of fall pompons and daisies, yellow sweetheart roses accented by fall-colored wheat and wood roses.

The flower girl, Lisa Saullo, cousin of the bride, wore a gown styled as the other attendants, and carried a fireside basket of flowers.

The Rev. Michael Garland, Glen Rock, Pa., was chosen as best man. The Rev. Samuel Kimmel, Warren, was head usher and Gary Lepard, brother of the bridegroom also served as an usher. Jeffrey Piazza, a cousin of the bride served as ringbearer.

All the men in the bridal party wore brown tuxedos, with flares and wore carnations of apricot or green.

A reception for the bridal party was held in the fellowship hall of the Hillcrest Baptist Church, with 200 guests in attendance. Reception aides were Debbie Serrano and Zeana Morreale.

After Oct. 16 the couple's address will be Box 372 Huron, Ohio, 44839.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Jamestown High School and attended Northeast Bible Institute, where she met her future husband.

The Rev. Lepard is a 1967 graduate of Riverside High School, Painesville, Ohio and a 1971 graduate of Northeast Bible Institute.

He is now associate pastor of the First Assembly of God Church in Huron, Ohio.

International Bazaar Scheduled At YWCA

The World Fellowship Committee of the Warren YWCA is sponsoring a Bazaar and Bake Sale, to be held on Friday, Oct. 15 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 16 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Many of the items for sale are obtained through the International Gift Shops of the Church World Service whose aim is "Through Self-help a Better Life". Handicraft workshops have been established and cottage industries encouraged, with training programs for the young and inexperienced. It is from these sources the many beautiful and useful objects have been obtained.

There are to be wood carvings from Ecuador; woven placemats and ponchos from Bolivia; Mexico is represented by its silver jewelry; Puerto Rico uses bamboo and coconut shells to fashion gifts; Haiti—through the Salvation Army—contributes many wooden objects; Greek prisoners, as a part of their rehabilitation, create straw mosaic trays; from South Africa come beaded pins; Hong Kong also contributes through its refugees, artifacts; from India come carved trivets and animals; little Tanzania, through the Mennonites, sends straw items with traditional designs from East Africa; Korea has Chinese character pins; Thailand has sent some avant-garde lapel pins; Taiwan's textiles are applied on cotton percale with Chinese designs; from Honduras come copper jewelry enameled in modern as well as Mayan designs; the leather pins from Japan are to be available; those embroidered handbags from the Philippines are to be sold; Kenya's hand carved animals from muhogo wood and ebony are available; and from Jordan comes the carved mother-of-pearl necklaces, bracelets, earrings and brooches.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need to know if I am the one who is nuts for attaching so much importance to this—or is it my future mother-in-law?

Dad died when I was six. Mom has been in and out of my life for the past ten years. Grandma raised me. She's a fine person, but getting senile. I am 22 and have worked since I was 17. I'm going to be married to a great guy in November. Since my family can't afford anything, my husband's mother wants to do the wedding "her way." I knew she was eccentric but until now I didn't think she was cracked. Listen to this: The woman is training her Scottie dog to carry a ring in his mouth and put it on a pillow. You guessed it. She wants the dog to be the ring-bearer.

I told her the minister would not stand for having a dog in the church. She said, "If he doesn't like it, we'll have the wedding in the Moose Hall and hire a J.P."

Ann, I don't want a J.P. I want a minister. Also, I don't want the dog. Please give me some mature guidance.

Dear R.: Tell your future mother-in-law that she is cordially invited to attend a simple ceremony in the minister's study, and to please leave the dog at home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband (age 27) and our son (age 9) play "Let's Fight." My husband started this a couple of weeks ago. They hit each other and wrestle around for anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour. This goes on at least two or three times a week.

There's a lot of huffing and puffing and yelling and laughing—until my son gets hit hard. Then there's crying and he won't talk to his dad for a while.

I don't like this kind of fooling around. I'm afraid it is damaging the boy physically and emotionally. My husband says it's a good way to make a man out of him. What do you say?—In Doubt

Dear I.D.: Your suspicions are well-founded. A good deal of hostility and punitive action can be hidden under the guise of a game—or "just fooling around," especially where hand-to-hand combat is involved. Your husband should cut it out. He is sowing seed of resentment in the boy. There are many physical things a father and son can do together to build a relationship—both competitive and non-competitive sports, such as tennis, bowling, swimming and so on.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You—For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

The annual DAR Regents' Day dinner is to be held at 6 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 14 at the Glenn Restaurant. Reservations must be received by Mrs. Quentin Holt Monday.

The Chandler's Valley Extension Group is to meet at the E.U.M. Church Oct. 12 at 1 p.m. for an organization meeting. Each member is asked to bring an idea to work on this year.

The Swede Hollow Extension Group met at the home of Mrs. Elsworth Hawley Wednesday, Oct. 6, at 1:30 p.m. The group made plastic film flowers as its first project. The next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. Raymond McMillen, Patchen Hill rd., Oct. 26 at 1:30 p.m.

Hungarian Style Pork Steak High In Nutrition—Low In Cost

tasty and inexpensive family dinner

Pork steaks in sour cream gravy is a dish borrowed from Hungary, a country known for its good food that is consumed in an atmosphere of music and romance. Pork is a basic food there as it is here.

Pork chops are the most popular pork cuts prepared in American homes while the more economical round and blade bone steaks are sometime forgotten fare. All are prepared the same way and all have the appealing good pork flavor. The steaks are browned slowly in a small amount of fat. The added fat keeps them from sticking and is essential for pork. The slow browning develops the flavor and color that are so desirable in a good pork dish. The meat is seasoned, a little liquid is added and the skillet is then covered. After simmering for 40 to 50 minutes, the steaks are ready to be served. A gravy can be made from the good drippings and in this recipe sour cream is added to make the gravy distinctive.

Hungarian-style Pork Steaks in Sour Cream Gravy are delightful served on cooked buttered noodles. A sprinkle of paprika gives the dish a pleasant bluish. Most important of all, the pork gives the meal a backbone of nourishment. Easy to digest pork is the richest food source of thiamine and contains high quality protein. At the same time modern day lean pork is low in calories. An average serving of 3½ ounces of cooked pork contains just 240 calories compared with 377 calories for pork of yesterday.

HUNGARIAN-STYLE PORK STEAKS WITH SOUR CREAM GRAVY
4 pork steaks, ¾ inch thick
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup water

½ cup dairy sour cream
Buttered noodles
Paprika
Melt butter in a large skillet. Brown mushrooms and remove. Add pork steaks. Brown well on both sides. Season with salt and pepper. Add ½ cup water, Worcestershire sauce and mushrooms. Cover tightly and simmer over very low heat 40 minutes. Remove meat to platter and keep warm while preparing gravy. There should be about ½ cup juices with the mushrooms in the skillet. Mix flour and remaining water to form a smooth paste. Add to juices. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Stir in sour cream. Serve at once over pork steaks on top of buttered noodles. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Makes four servings.

Hint From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I always put buttons on my son's and husband's shirts with my zig-zag sewing machine, but always had the problem of keeping the button in the right spot until I got that first stitch in.

Today I happened to spot a jar of white school paste sitting on the counter and the idea hit me.

I put just a dab on the button and put it where I wanted to sew it on.

The paste washes out on the first laundering and until washed, the button hides the dab.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—As South, vulnerable,
you hold:
♠5 KJ86 ♠KQ10 ♣AKJ87
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Four hearts. Even if partner has made a shaded response you do not wish to play for less than game. Your hand is worth 2½ points in support of hearts.
Remember that a jump to three hearts would permit partner to pass.

Q. 2—Neither side vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠1072 ♠AJ10975 ♠K72 ♠3
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
3 ♣ Pass Pass 4 ♣
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Partner has shown a strong hand, one on which he can win at least eight or nine tricks himself. You should, therefore, be conscious of slam; and it is suggested that you bid at least five spades. This is a vague sort of bid, of course. At this level it is hard to be precise, but you must get across to partner the notion that you have some cards which will be highly useful to him.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable,
you hold:
♠AJ83 ♠AK96 ♠AK764
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East

What do you bid now?
A—Three hearts. While we do not choose to open this hand with a two demand bid, prospects are better now than they were at the start, simply because hearts, a suit which would have done us no good, are marked with both opponents. This makes the likelihood very great that we will find a fit with one of our suits in partner's hand.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable
and as South you hold:
♠9 ♠AQ1086 ♠A75 ♠AQ43
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Three hearts. While you have the values to proceed to three no trump, your own preference should be for a heart contract if that is agreeable with partner. The bid of three hearts at this point, after both partners have shown good hands, is forcing. North must either raise to four hearts or return to three no trump.

Q. 5—East-West vulnerable
and as South you hold:
♠AQ10 ♠KQ9 ♠AQ1052 ♠104
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Dble.
1 NT Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Double again. Even the partner was unable to make a free bid, you should not abandon this hand, which contains 17 points in high cards. A bid of two diamonds is not recommended; the double could result in a late leave-in by partner, which might prove profitable.

Q. 6—As South, both sides vulnerable, you hold:
♠A742 ♠AK864 ♠J6 ♠32
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ ?

What do you bid?
A—Pass. There is no action that you can take with safety.
Against an opening bidder and an adversary who has been able to respond at the level of two, it is extremely risky to reach for an eight trick contract with a hand that may well produce no more than four tricks.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable
and as South you hold:
♠864 ♠AQJ1075 ♠K84 ♠A
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ 1 ♣ 2 ♣ Pass

What action do you take?
A—Our own preference is for a rebid of merely two hearts which is, to be sure, somewhat of an understatement, and yet a jump to three hearts would be a shade too aggressive. There is need to press when partner has made a free bid and therefore intends to make some move toward game. On the next round, South will be in a position comfortably to make a delayed jump.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable,
you hold:
♠J87 ♠AQ10974 ♠A ♠AK5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East

What do you bid now?
A—Six hearts. North has shown a good hand, first by responding at the level of two, then by showing the spade control and subsequently by supporting hearts. He should, therefore, have the necessary ingredients to produce 12 tricks.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.
FOR MONDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1971
ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Don't yield to lethargy
now. Use corrective measures when occasion demands.
Get out with a will and try confidently. There's always room for lofty ambitions!
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Influences can be more helpful than you think. The soundly energetic worker will find openings where others fail. Maintain balance through steady effort and common sense.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Reach for the unusual, the eye-catcher. Learn new methods, help build understanding between associates. Set your mind on rightful obligations in laudable causes.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—A day in which to look UP! Stimulate your will power, energize your acquisitiveness—in the right way. But, remember, only by asking questions will you get the right answers.
LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Expect some irritating situations. By being prepared, you can handle them successfully. Affairs close to home, civic interests could bound ahead under your wise guidance.
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Avoid making hasty decisions. Favored now: All substantial matters, industrial trades; agriculture; work with machinery,
tools; making needed improvements.
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Mild influences predude a hectic day. But a quiet period is a good time to regroup, replan, replenish energies; is an ally for those who work with it.
SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Up and

Ed Dodd

By Frances Drake

forward with good will, accuracy! Do not permit others' requests to clutter your routine. Do not violate confidences.
SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)— Make your day's beginning a careful one, so as not to have to retrace steps and lose valuable time. Don't mix with those not interested in your best aims.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Study trends, seek the best sources for tapping. Develop your top-flight faculties and put everything into this day to give the week the right send-off.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)— Frankness? Yes, in its place, but a measure of tact and delicacy required, too. Note another person's reason for certain actions: Judge impartially.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Be flexible enough in thought to take in a brand new idea or device before it has become outmoded. Resist doubting and tendencies toward hypercriticism.
YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect, creative ability, an outstanding intuition, fair-mindedness and unusual sympathy for the underprivileged. You are gregarious, too, but tend to be unyielding at times, thus alienating potential friends and aides. You are reserved and dignified, but always ready to lend a helping hand.
You may have a fine singing voice, and if so, should spare no effort to develop it. Fields in which you could achieve a notable success: Music, writing, the theater, the law, statemanship, medicine and education. Birthdate of:
Samuel Clark, Eng. philosopher; Eleanor Roosevelt, U.N.
representative, writer, wife of U.S. President.

How to Keep Well

MIRACLE OF GROWTH
Growth of the living organism, is a complex, but orderly process. And the most dramatic changes take place when the developing structure cannot be seen by the naked eye. This explains why the chicken bears no resemblance to the egg or the newborn baby to the human ovum.
The miracle of mammalian growth is that it begins with a tiny fertilized cell. It weighs very little but grows at a rate that varies markedly in different species. The gestation period of man and cattle is approximately the same, yet at birth the human child weighs 7½ pounds and the calf 77 pounds—10 times as much. In other mammals, the rate of growth during the entire gestation period may be 100,000 times greater in one than in the other.
Baby mammals also gain more weight per day during the suckling period than they did before birth. The rate of growth depends upon the food supply and the ability of the young to make use of it. Undernourishment is disharmony and some organs are more affected by the deficit than are others.
Each organ of the baby begins to grow at a different time after conception. Growth of the structures also ceases at its own appointed time. Teeth appear at the precise moment the jaw has room for them.
Cell division stops when each organ has reached maximum size. In some parts of the body, cellular activity can start up again. This has been noted when part of the liver has been removed or destroyed by disease.
Bone growth is adapted to the life the animal will lead outside the uterus. The lamb, foal, calf and camel are born with long legs because they are wanderers and may be forced to leave shortly after birth for protection and food.
TOMORROW: Masked Thyroid Disease.

‘TURNING’ TO FAT
Mrs. H.A. writes: How long does it take for food to turn to fat? What I mean is, after eating a good meal, how many hours pass before it turns to fat?
REPLY
Fat cells appear in the blood within an hour after eating this type of food. If it is not burned up immediately as energy, it is stored in the tissues during the ensuing 24 hours.
DISCOMFORT FROM VACCINATION
D.K. writes: Does a child feel sick after getting shots for contagious diseases?
REPLY
Usually not, altho some children develop slight fever and have pain at the site of injection. These symptoms are controlled by aspirin.
SCALP SWEATING
Mr. E.D. writes: What causes me to perspire on the forehead and scalp when I eat? P.S. I'm bald.
REPLY
Food is fuel to the body and in some persons the old furnace gets hot enough to stimulate sweating. Baldness has nothing to do with it except lack of hair makes the beads of perspiration more noticeable.
ITCHING NOSE AND LIPS
I.N. writes: What causes constant itching of the nose and lips?
REPLY
Allergy or infection may be responsible when signs of inflammation exist. Some people are more itchy than others. Scratching is a nervous habit in many instances.

The Light Touch by Mike Chase

Police agree that you have nothing to gain by resisting in an armed holdup. Your best bet is to give the thief exactly what he wants, fast.

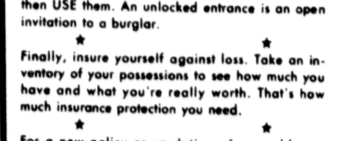

Should you buy a handgun for your protection? Not a good idea, say police, because there's always the possibility of a family accident.

Use the "buddy-system" to protect your neighborhood. Watch out for your neighbor's property—particularly if you know he's away for a while. Report all unusual activity or suspicious strangers to the police.

Install strong locks on all doors and windows—then USE them. An unlocked entrance is an open invitation to a burglar.

Finally, insure yourself against loss. Take an inventory of your possessions to see how much you have and what you're really worth. That's how much insurance protection you need.

TYPICAL SCENE

Volunteer Fire Departments throughout Warren County, including North Warren, observed Fire Prevention Week last week. Most brought their messages by concentrating on educating the young people in the area as to fire prevention by demonstrating equipment used.

Some schools sponsored poster contests and fire officials were on hand when awards were announced. In North Warren last week, Michele Bimber was the bell ringer. (Photo by Mansfield)

Roxanna Harman, Sam Wagner Crowned 4-H Queen And King

Miss Roxanna Harman and Sam Wagner were named 1972 Forest County 4-H Queen and King at ceremonies during the annual Forest County 4-H Achievement held Friday evening in St. Anthony's, Tionesta.

The newly crowned queen is the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Harman, RD1, Tionesta. In club work for 6 years she has served her club in many offices and also teen leader.

Roxanna has taken projects in foods, clothing, horticulture, home furnishings and management, electric, family life, photography and leadership.

She has participated in many regional and state 4-H events including Dress Revue, Teen Leaders Retreat, State Capital Days and Citizenship Short Course in Washington, D.C.

In the area of food preservation Roxanna was named Keystone Winner of the National Awards Program in 1970 and 1971. She was also named Keystone Winner in Home Management this year.

She was a member of the state winning team in consumer presentation in 1969. This year her demonstration placed third in state competition.

Miss Harman is a senior at North Clarion where she is active in the Junior Historians. Roxanna also holds a part time job as waitress.

Sam Wagner is the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wagner of RD1, Tionesta. Wagner, a teen leader too, has also held several offices in his club. He has been president of the 4-H County Teen Leaders for two years.

Wagner has been a 4-H member for seven years. His projects include dairy, field corn, rabbits, electric, photography, foods, small engines and leadership.

He has been a Forest County delegate to Pennsylvania 4-H Congress. At State 4-H Days he participated in the Awards Assembly and was M.C. at Teen Leader Retreat. At district 4-H camp he was junior counselor.

Besides his activities in 4-H, Wagner is active in West Forest School where he is a junior and a member of the basketball team. Sam is also interested in music and plays and sings for many groups. The 1971 queen and king, Sandy Bean, and Gene McFail, East Hickory served as escorts and proceeded with the official crowning, which included the presentation of flowers, trophies and money.

Miss Harman and Wagner will reign as 4-H Queen and King during the 1972 4-H club year and were selected on the basis of leadership and participation in the 4-H program.

Selected to the court were: Carolyn Walters, Star Route 2, Tionesta; Debbie Range, Betty Jo McWilliams, RD1, Tionesta; and Ronald Harman and Ross Mealy, RD1, Tionesta and Ted Good, Lickingville.

Mrs. Beverly (Allie) Richards, 1970 Queen was mistress of ceremonies for the event with the National 4-H Club Week theme: 4-H Bridges the Gap.

Prior to the crowning the Pledge of Allegiance and 4-H Pledge was led by Cindy Ostergard, Pleasantville and Terry Bean, Star Route 2, Tionesta. Sam Wagner and Ross Mealy led those attending in singing.

Representing teen leaders Gene McFail and Debbi Range presented certificates to 4-H leaders for their volunteer service to youth of Forest County.

Mrs. Lyle Mealy, Red Brush 4-H leader announced the teen leader awards. An official 4-H jacket was presented to those completing their first year in the leadership project. Those completing their second year in the leadership project received a white cotton sweat shirt containing the 4-H emblem. Teen leaders completing their third year received a gold-filled teen leadership pin with a numeral guard indicating years.

The Red Brush 4-H club was awarded first place for club achievement. Second place was won by Roaming Riders. The Junior Vets were awarded third place.

Roxanna Harman, Keystone Winner in food preservation and home management areas of the National Awards program was presented a lovely tray of silver plate, properly engraved.

Janis Wagner, RD1, Tionesta, Pennsylvania Clothing Winner

in National Awards and also Keystone Winner in leadership was presented a tea set which included four beautiful silver plate pieces of classic design.

Awards were presented to outstanding salesman in the county fund raising project for the National 4-H Center. A 4-H pennant was presented to those selling at least 1 case of candy. Those receiving pennants were: Arlene Decker, Janis Wagner, Jim Harbison, Dave El, Kim Flick, Valerie Knight, Sally Regina, Lorie Kingston, Connie Eck, Cheryl Thorne, Sandy Bean, Virginia Ekis, Rose Mazzocchi, Gene Mc Fail, Cindy and Chris Ostergard.

Those receiving a 4-H T-shirt for selling at least two cases were: Sam Wagner, Mark DeVore, Gail DeVore, Mike Knight, Steve Knight, Lorena Walters, Mary Ann Maygar, Debbie Faraone, Patty Faraone, Sue Wallace, Pat Wallace, Janet Ebner, Ronnie Harman, Debbi Range, Betty Jo McWilliams, and Judy Anderson.

Kay Woods and Tina Dehner, both Newmansville 4-H'ers were each presented a white olympic sweatshirt with a 4-H emblem for selling at least 4 cases. Following the crowning refreshments were served. Teen leaders aided Nancy G. Shoup, home economist and William R. Wallace, county agent in planning and preparing for the annual event.

Law Becomes Effective Today Slow Moving Vehicle Must Display Warning Sign

Beginning today, all farm machinery, highway construction and maintenance equipment, and other vehicles designed to travel at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less will be required to display a slow moving equipment emblem.

While the law (Act 77) requiring that a fluorescent yellow-orange and red triangle becomes effective on October 11, Secretary of Transportation Jacob Kassab has asked State and local police not to enforce this new amendment to the Vehicle Code before December 11.

Kassab explained that the effective date insofar as enforcement is concerned has been set back to give PennDOT time to send emblems to the testing laboratory for approval.

J.A. Trombetta, PennDOT's Director of the Bureau of Traffic Safety, said Pennsylvania becomes the 27th state which now requires use of the triangular-shaped, reflectorized emblem, an emblem approved by the National Safety Council.

Trombetta reported that there has been a substantial reduction in deaths and injuries in collisions in which slow-moving vehicles were involved in states in which the slow moving emblem has been mandatory.

He added that the National Safety Council estimates that approximately 7,000 to 8,000 slow moving motor vehicle collisions occur with other motorists each year. About 1000 people lose their lives as a result, and between 1,600 and 1,800 non-fatal injuries occur.

The slow moving emblem which is to be positioned as near as practicable to the center of the machinery, shall be in addition to any lighting devices, flags or other equipment required by law.

Audits Approved For Local Firemen's Relief Groups

HARRISBURG —The accounts of the firemen's relief associations of Youngsville Borough, Glade and Pine Grove townships have been audited and approved by the State Auditor General's Department, State Auditor General Robert P. Casey said yesterday.

In the case of Youngsville Firemen's Relief Association, the audit report showed the association starting 1970 with a balance of $4,967.24, with receipts during the year amounting to $2,263.25 broken down as follows: State allocations, $1,361.64; amortization of loan, $600; interest income, $213.61; interest on loan, $70 for a fund total of $7,230.49.

Expenditures during the year amounted to $1,367.94 — $1,088.33 in insurance premiums, $150 in ambulance dues, $64 in bond premium, $58.25 in protective equipment and $7.36 in office supplies, leaving a cash balance of $5,862.55. Investments as of December 31 comprised $17,184.10 in Mutual Funds (at cost), $14,000 in Certificates of Deposit, $2,200 in unsecured loan (at amortized value) and $1,500 in bonds (at cost) which coupled with the cash balance gave the association a January 1, 1971 balance of $40,846.65.

The Glade Township Firemen's Relief Association audit shows that $242.40 was received from State allocations during 1970 and $107.26 in interest income which added to a January 1, 1970 balance of $2,631.19 gave the fund a total of $2,980.85. Expenditures during the year amounted to $219.70 in insurance premiums, leaving a January 1, 1971 cash balance of $2,761.15 in the fund.

Russell Firemen's Relief Association, Pine Grove Township, started the year 1970 with a balance of $3,086.68 while receipts during the year totaled $1,104.61 — $356.03 from State allocations, $600 as reimbursement from improper expenditure and $148.58 from interest income for a fund total of $4,191.29. Association expenditures amounted to $444 broken down into $419 for insurance premiums and $25 for fidelity bond premium, leaving a cash balance of $3,747.29.

JUST GREAT
That's what a happy Bob Divido of Nanty Glo had to say as he prepares to discuss the method that brought him the king's crown in Tidioute's tournament. (Photo by Lester)

This Year's King 20-Year Veteran On Allegheny

By DON NEAL

King of Pennsylvania Fishermen—that's what they will be calling Bob Divido of Nanty Glo, Pa., at least throughout the coming year. For Bob walked off with the lion's share of the marbles at Tidioute's 12th annual Pennsylvania Fishing Tournament. And if 20 years of experience and 12 years of nursing a never-say-die attitude is to be considered, no one deserved it more.

Twenty years Bob has been fishing the Allegheny River, using a nearby camp as a base, and 12 years he has been shooting for the crown at the fishing tournament. Asked what he thought of winning this year, he replied "It's great!"

So what kind of a fisherman is Bob Divido? There's only one answer to this—he's a great one. But besides that he's a dedicated bait fisherman. Minnows are his favorite lure.

But Bob goes for special species of minnows. As he says, he prefers sandpike (who doesn't?), but they are too hard to catch. So most of the time he is rifle minnows. Other species are used on occasion, but it was the rifle minnows that scored for him in this year's tournament.

In commenting on his 20 years experience at fishing the Allegheny river, Bob said that while bass aren't as plentiful as they once were, he's catching bigger bass now than at any time in the past. And, like a lot

"No!" said the weatherman. "Yes! Yes!" said the fishermen. The decision on a dreary rain-spattered weekend finally went to the fishermen as Tidioute's 12th annual Pennsylvania Fishing Tournament drew to a highly successful end. Weather has usually been a problem during the contest, but never a deterrent.

However, the 12th annual event topped the others in both the number of fishermen participating and, seemingly, in the number of fish entered for points at the contest headquarters.

From the tailwaters of the Kinzua Dam to Hunter's Bridge at Tionesta the river was well populated with fishermen on Saturday, and a lesser, but considerable number, amount on Sunday. A few of the contestants were evidently "burning the midnight oil" as lantern lights could be seen at various spots along the river throughout Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

While fishermen were reported to be more plentiful on the river north of Tidioute this year, this portion of the river wasn't as productive as the portion of the river south of the town. A majority of the fish entered in the contest were caught from the riffles and eddies downstream from the tournament center. In past years the upper and lower sections have both usually been highly productive, and occasionally the upper section has come off with top honors, as has the lower section on at least two previous occasions.

Livebait was undoubtedly the choice of most fishermen turning in the high point catches. However the "citation" northern pike, caught by James Lippert of Pittsburgh, a 12 pound 4 ounce beauty, fell for a spoon of the daredevil type. But the "citation" walleye, caught by Paul Hudec of Pittsburgh, a 10 pound 2 ounce lunker, came via a big chub.

A sidelight to these two catches—both Lippert and Hudec have caught "citation" fish from the Allegheny River Lippert scored on a musky, Hudec on another sizeable within the past three years. Yet it was Robert Divido, George Wagner of Stoneham, crowned King of Pennsylvania Fishermen in 1964 and 1965 at Tidioute, rested on his laurels for a while Saturday while fishing below Kinzua Dam. Close behind in second place was Ralph Santucci of Clarksville, another regular at the Tidioute event. Ralph scored 28 points on 4 walleyes and 4 bass.

Third place went to Mike Hudec of Allison Park, Pa.,

Saturday's winners who failed to win, place, or show in the Sunday's finals were: Ed Thimons of Tarentum with an 11 pound musky; Carl Sokalski of Lower Burrell with a 9 pound 8 ounce musky; James Lippert of Pittsburgh with the "citation" northern pike; George Wagner of Stoneham with a 4 pound 3

Stan Smith's Smash Secures Another Davis Cup For U.S.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Army Private Stan Smith smashed Romania's temperamental Ion Tiriac 8-6, 6-3, 6-0 Sunday and clinched the Davis Cup for the United States for the 23rd time.

The victory sent the Americans ahead of Australia 23-22 in their 71-year rivalry for the big international tennis bowl. Britain and France are the only other nations to have won the trophy.

Smith's methodical and almost dull singles triumph in a rain-delayed fourth match gave the United States an insurmountable 3-1 lead in the best-of-5 series and made a formality of the final match between Frank Froehling III of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and Romania's Ilie Nastase.

That match was halted by rain with Nastase leading 6-4, 2-0 and will be resumed at 1 p.m. EDT Monday.

It was Smith's ninth victory in 10 Davis Cup matches during his career, his only defeat coming in doubles Saturday when Tiriac and Nastase beat him and 20-year-old Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., 7-5, 6-4, 8-6 for Romania's only point.

In the opening days singles, the 6-foot-4 Smith, reigning U.S. Open champion and Wimbledon runner-up this year, crushed Nastase 7-5, 6-3, 6-1 and Froehling, a surprise choice, downed Tiriac in a two-day, five-set marathon, 3-6, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, 8-6.

It appeared that Sunday's matches might have to be postponed because of an overnight deluge that left the clay court of the Julian J. Clark Stadium a virtual pool.

However, a helicopter was flown in to dry the surface with its swirling blades and gasoline was poured over the courts to turn it into a flaming pyre. The court was fairly dry and some 5,500 fans were in the stands when the Smith-Tiriac match began at 2:58 p.m. EDT—nearly two hours late.

It would have started sooner but no one could get an official okay for the use of the helicopter. The mayor has an unlisted telephone and the police chief was in church.

Tiriac, an awesome figure with a Fu Manchu mustache and a head of black curly hair, was his own worst enemy in a match in which he didn't give himself a chance.

From the outset, he was bickering with officials and arguing with the highly demonstrative and pro-American gallery.

He glowered at linemen, he pelted balls petulantly into the backstop and into the net, he protested to the umpires' chair and pulled stalling tactics.

Twice, he asked referee Harry Hopman, the old Australian Davis Cup captain, to make an appeal to the gallery not to make a noise.

"The Charlotte galleries are too patriotic," Tiriac grumbled. Once, while he was buying time, patting an imaginary divot in the court, a fan yelled from the stands: "Play tennis."

Tiriac stopped, put his hands on his hips and yelled back at the fan in non-understandable Romanian.

Dragons Outfox Titusville, 28-20

By DAVID PIRILLO
Titusville fell 28-20 to Warren Saturday afternoon on War Memorial Field. But it took a change in Toby Shea's playbook to see it through.

The game was in the fourth quarter, with about eight minutes of playing time remaining. Buck Crabb's Rockets had just scored minutes before, taking a 21-20 lead.

The Titusville pilot rolled the dice on the ensuing kickoff, hoping for a ten-yard on-side kick by Joe Wagner. His gamble failed. Instead of ten, he got nine, and the Dragons took over on the Rocket 49.

Quarterback Rob Young and wingback Jim Stromdahl tested Titusville's line for solidity. They found it impenetrable. A five-yard penalty on an illegal procedure moved Warren back into its own territory. Young then dropped a pass into Stromdahl's hands over the middle, and Warren came up three yards short of a first down.

It was fourth down and three yards to go. What did Shea do? If you're thinking like Coach Crabb, assuming that Warren is about to smash either of your tackles with a slant, then you drop four linebackers over the line and await the inevitable. That has been Crabb's forte in the past—out-guessing Shea in crucial situations. And it has worked. After all, Titusville hadn't lost to a Shea team in four years under Crabb.

The play formed with backs cracking into the Titusville line—only without the ball. Young sprang into the air and dumped a quick fling into the belly of split end Mike Piehuta slanting into Titusville's backfield. The play was an ingenious stroke of football strategy. Piehuta bolted through the secondary for an eleven-yard pickup, and the Dragons had the ball on the 30. Five plays later the Dragons had crossed the goal line for their final time.

Planned Play
Sitting in his chair after the game, Coach Shea was asked: "Toby, that's not a Shea play (meaning the pass on fourth down and three to go). Were you thinking, at the time, like Crabb would?"

Shea looked up, smiled and said, "Yes, we knew they (Titusville) would be expecting the power play. We worked all week on the pass play, and know it's paid off."

Although the Dragons had secured the game, Warren's third in four decisions in the Northwestern Football Conference, Shea wasn't at all happy.

"We gave up entirely too much through the air," he said, "and we've worked on the same plays Titusville worked out there. It must be inconsistency or discipline on the boys' part. They're unsure of themselves."

Warren's defensive backfield allowed the Rockets 178 yards through the air on 10 completions; 103 of those yards came in the second quarter when Titusville scored twice. On the practice field and the blackboard the faulty pass coverage will be worked out this week, but Warren's running game, more than likely, will be left untouched.

Running Game Solid
Why? One reason is the slippery, speedy Bright. In 25 carries, the junior tailback compiled 167 yards in 25 carries, while scoring twice on runs of 15 and one yards.

Bright's output has brought him up to 500 yards on 94 carries in five games, 5.3 yards per carry and 100 yards per game. Rivaling Bright from the other side of the Warren line was hard-hitting Titusville halfback Joe Wagner. Wagner collecting 68 yards and two touchdowns in the second period, completed the day with an exhaustive 23 carries and 115 yards, two short of the Rockets' total rushing yards in four periods.

Warren started out smoothly from its 20 after Wagner boomed the kickoff into the end zone. On third and four from the 26, Bright slammed off left tackle, where he would run most of his carries behind tackle Fred Martin, guard Dave Dunn and wingback Jim Stromdahl, and angled for the sidelines and downfield for 26 yards. Bright, alternating with Stromdahl on successive carries, placed the ball down on the seven. Two short yardage plays later, Bright followed a devastating Dave Turner block around the left side and galloped 15 yards for the score. Ricardo Aluarenga swung into the ball with his soccer style kick and Warren had itself a 7-0 margin. It was to be Aluarenga's first of four extra point conversions for the day, and it is now four games since he's missed an attempt, dating back to the Corry victory.

Titusville had the ball late in the opening period on the Warren 39, benefitting from a short Bright punt. However, Don Trubic shook the ball loose from Steve Morrill on a fourth-down play on Warren's 30 and Martin recovered for Warren.

On the next series of plays, Bright ran in front of a ruinous Jeff Myers' block, shook off two tacklers, and went 33 yards to the Titusville 15.

Stromdahl boomed off left tackle for 5 more yards, then Warren tied.

Score On A Break
Young was dropped for a nine-yard loss, opening the second-period of play. An illegal procedure call on Warren, and an incomplete pass forced Shea to call on Aluarenga for a field goal from the Titusville 24, which would mean a 40-yard boot altogether. The kick was short and Titusville took over. On the next play from scrimmage, quarterback Gary Carlson pitched back to Dan Morris on the left. The ball squirted by him. Alert Warren tackle Chris Sirianni scooped up the ball, with Peter Salerno protecting him from oncoming Rocket tacklers, and rumbled seven yards for the touchdown.

After the kick, Warren led 14-0. As if some curse befell Warren, the entire complexion of the game was about to change. Titusville took Tannler's kickoff, changed quarterbacks in the series, and was on its way. Wagner lumbered through Warren's wall for gains of 4 and 17 yards. David Mowrey, Carlson's replacement at quarterback, split Warren's backfield with completions of 19 and five yards. Then Wagner did it—rambled 36 yards over and through Warren defenders for Titusville's first TD. He bucked over for the extra points and the Rockets trailed by six.

Warren was six inches short of obtaining a first down on the ensuing series, giving the ball back to the Rockets, which was a mistake. A look-in pass to end Mark Romanisyn for 25 yards and a 44-yard fling to Archie Daniels, the other end, Mowrey's fourth straight completion, and the Rockets threatened again. Two plays later, Daniels was receptive to a 10-yard fling, setting up Wagner for a two-yard TD buck to tie the game. His extra-points try was stopped a half-yard short by Piehuta. That was the situation at the half, a 14-14 tie.

Warren came back like "a house on fire." On seven plays, the Dragons moved the ball from their 36 to the Rocket nine. Faking into both backs diving into the line, Young rolled around the right side on a bootleg and fired a scoring strike to Don Trubic completing his flag-pattern play. Trubic cradled the ball in his chest as he was falling in the end zone.

After a minus one-yard total for the third period, which included no completions, Titusville came back in the final moments of the third quarter. On the series time was carried into the fourth period. A 26-yard completion and another of 13 yards moved the ball to Warren's 13. Three straight Wagner blasts, the final of two yards, did the trick. Titusville scored and was attempting to add the extra points on a quarter-back option around Warren's left side. Linebacker Piehuta sensed it coming, and quickly shot through Titusville's line and dropped Mowrey.

The short on-side kick followed, Shea's gamble paid off. Warren scored, and the Dragons held off Titusville on the Warren 40 when the gun ended the game.

Warren plays at home against Grove City Saturday.

Bradford CC Taskmasters Punish Wolverines, 36-0

By TOM SCHULTZ
DUKE CENTER—Bradford Central Christian gave a lesson on the basics of football—both offensively and defensively—Saturday evening and the part of the unwilling pupil was played by the Sheffield Wolverines. When school was out, it was Bradford CC 36, Sheffield 0.

The Ramblers unleashed a powerful offensive unit which ran almost at will through the Wolverines' defense and kept control of the ball for sustained periods of time. For the evening, Bradford CC picked up 394 yards on the ground, eclipsing the 100 yard total in the first and third periods and just missing in the final 12 minutes with 99.

Senior quarterback Terry Buck hit on only three of seven passes, but they were good for an additional 75 yards. If the second quarter, Buck was content to run at the Wolverines, and never put the ball in the air.

The Ramblers' defensive eleven, meanwhile, was putting the clamps on a Sheffield offense which had racked up 76 points in its two preceding games.

The Wolverines managed just 77 yards rushing for the entire evening, with the runners becoming completely frustrated in the final stanza when they were held to a minus four total.

Their luck through the airways wasn't much better, four of ten completed by Kevin Weigel for 40 yards—32 coming in the fourth period when Sheffield was forced to go up top.

The two teams felt each other and traded punts in the beginning and in the final minutes of the opening period, a Sheffield punt pinned Bradford deep in its own territory, back at the 16.

Wingback Mike Alviti, who was to have an outstanding game, picked up three yards to the 19. From there, Marty Sapko took a pitch from Buck, turned the right corner behind fine blocking and was off on a 81 yard touchdown jaunt. Buck passed to Joe Costanzo for the PAT and Bradford was on top, 8-0.

The Wolverines could pick up only two first downs to start the second period and were forced to punt. Bradford, from its own 37, marched back down the field to light up the scoreboard again, as Alviti went around left end for the last eight yards. Fullback Don Gleason ran in for the extra points and the Ramblers went off at the half with a 16-0 margin.

The Ramblers didn't let up in the second half as they took the kickoff 66 yards for their third touchdown. Buck found Sapko wide open in the right flat for the final 19 yards and six more points. Sheffield stopped the try for extra point, but Bradford was pulling further away.

Sheffield had its best scoring chance when Craig Anderson took a Weigel pass to the 49, but dropped it as three Rambler defenders closed in. Bradford recovered, and was marching again.

It only took four plays this time as Gleason went up the middle with just two seconds showing on the clock. Costanzo added the extra points. The score was set up by a 41 yard pass play, Buck to Bill Taylor.

On Sheffield's first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, a bad snap at the 16 resulted in yet another fumble and another Bradford recovery. Five plays later, Alviti scored for the second time. It appeared that he was stopped at the three, but Alviti showed his power by running over two defenders for pay dirt.

The pass for extra points was dropped and the scoring was settled for the evening.

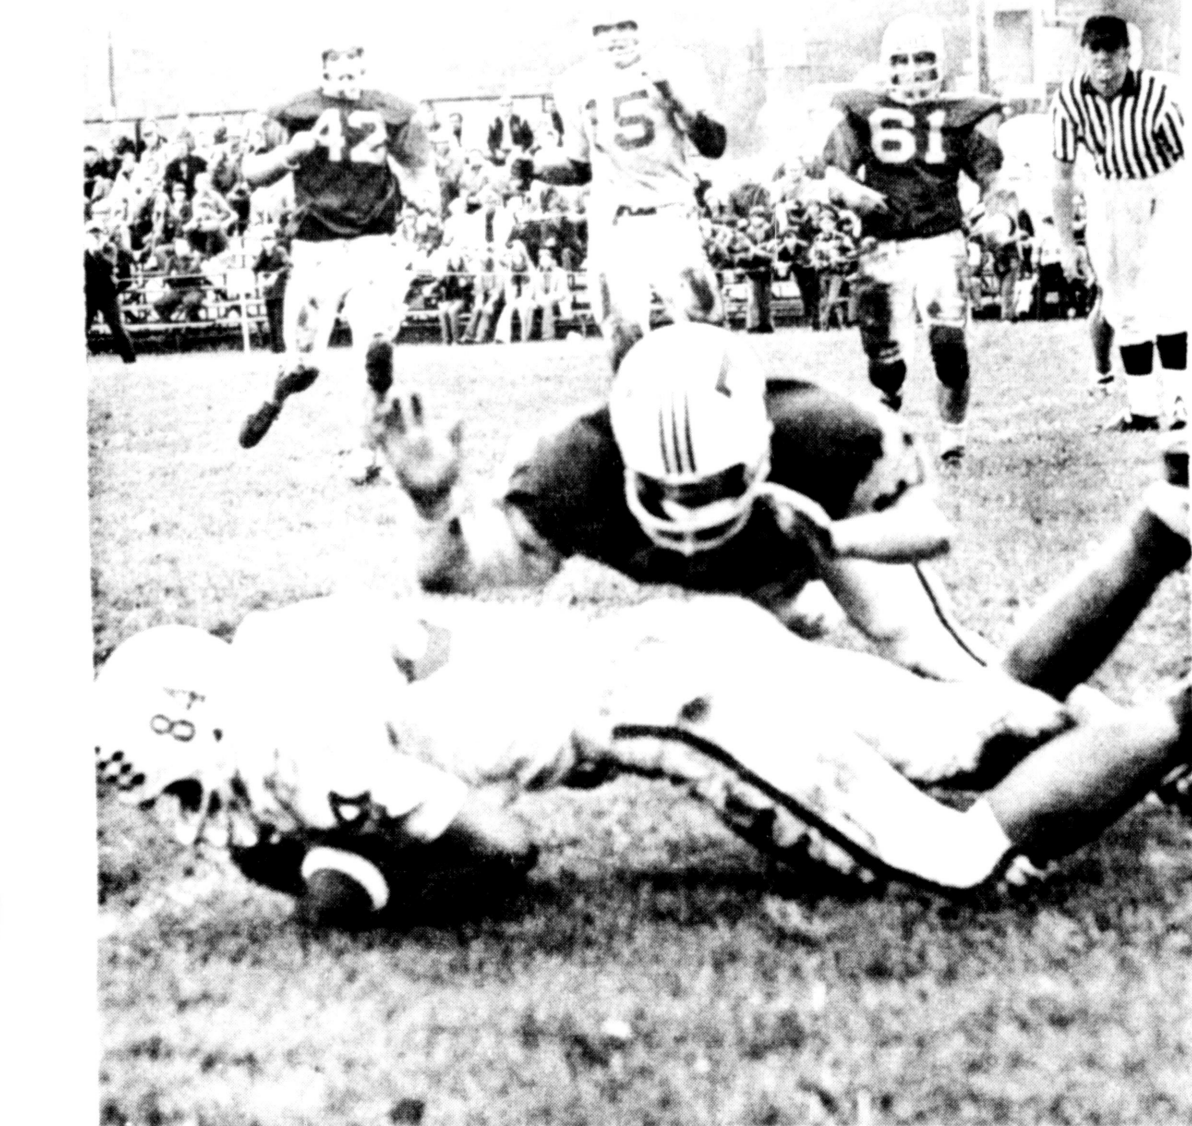

Weigel was Sheffield's leading runner with 40 yards. Rick McCellan had 30 on eight carries.

Alviti wound up with 110 yards in 16 carries and a pair of touchdowns. Running mate Costanzo added 79 yards to the total.

Fumbles hurt Sheffield in a big way. Four times the Ramblers fell on loose balls, and on three occasions the result was six points.

Next game for Sheffield is at home Saturday, against Coudersport.

Scots Slap Indiana

Edinboro came back from a 17-15 halftime deficit to nip previously-unbeaten Indiana University of Pennsylvania 29-23 Saturday.

The Scots scored first on a 72 yard drive with Bob Mengerink going the last four for the score. Mengerink's pass to Frank Berzansky made it 8-0.

Indiana came right back on Chuck Pinchotti's 39 yard gallop to move to within two points, then took the lead on a 31 yard march following an Edinboro fumble. Pinchotti again went in for the score.

With the aid of an interference call, Edinboro moved the length of the field to knot the score on Joe Sanford's one yard plunge. Kick by Berzansky put the Scots on top, 15-14. Ron Orenak kicked a 29 yard field goal, however, as time was running out to give Indiana a 17-15 halftime advantage.

Edinboro limited Indiana to just three Orenak field goals in the second half, while adding touchdowns by Al Raines and Mengerink for the six point margin of victory.

Edinboro, 4-0, will host Clarion State this week for what could be the western conference championship.

Edinboro 8 7 6 8—29
Indiana 14 3 3 3—23

The amazing Redskins, the only undefeated team among the 26 in the NFL, rode Curt Knight's five field goals and Ron McDole's 18-yard touchdown pass to a 22-13 victory over Houston in their home opener.

Buffalo's winless Bills ran into a Baltimore wall that yielded a scant 41 yards while the Colts got two touchdowns apiece from Norm Bulaich and Don McCauley en route to a 43-0 romp.

The Eagles' new coach, Ed Khayat, who took over when Jerry Williams was fired, made an inauspicious debut as Minnesota took advantage of two interceptions and a blocked field goal attempt to score all its points in a 13-0 blanking as Philadelphia also remained without a victory.

And the Jets, battling New England through a scoreless first half in a driving rain, fell apart in the third quarter as rookie quarterback Jim Plunkett unleashed a pair of touchdown strikes that paved the way to the Patriots' 20-0 triumph.

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland beat Pittsburgh 27-17, Chicago halted New Orleans 35-14, Detroit outlasted Green Bay 31-28, Miami defeated Cincinnati 23-13, St. Louis mauled Atlanta 26-9, Kansas City whipped San Diego 31-10, Los Angeles topped San Francisco 20-13 and Oakland turned back Denver 27-16. The New York Giants play the Cowboys in Dallas in Monday night's nationally televised (ABC, 9 p.m., EDT) game.

Knight's three-pointers, from 15, 36, 13, 17 and 39 yards out enabled the "Skins, leading the National Conference East, to win their fourth straight at the start of a season for the first time since 1943. They held the winless Oilers to two field goals and Charley Johnson's fiveyard touchdown toss to Leroy Sledge. The Colts amassed 404 yards against Buffalo, 217 of them on the ground. Bulaich snared a 30-yard touchdown pass from Earl Morrall and scored on a one-yard plunge while McCauley drove over from one and three yards out. Don Nottingham also scored on a 32-yard gallop.

The Vikings, who blanked Buffalo a week ago, put together successive shutouts for the first time in their 11-year history as the hapless Eagles went without a point for the first time since 1962. Dave Osborne bolted over from the two and Fred Cox kicked a pair of field goals for Minnesota.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner and No. 1 draft pick in the NFL, hit former Stanford teammate Randy Vataha with a 15-yard touchdown pass, then connected on a six-yarder to Ron Sellers before Jim Nance steamed 50 yards for the Patriots' final score. New England held the Jets to just eight yards through the air.

The Browns grabbed sole possession of first place in the AFC's Central Division as Milt Morin led the way, catching eight passes for 126 yards and a touchdown. Bo Scott and Leroy Kelly ran for one touchdown apiece while Terry Bradshaw passed for both Steelers scores.

Kent Nix of the Bears, making his first start since 1968, threw two scoring passes as Chicago ripped apart the New Orleans secondary with 215 yards through the air and rumbled over the Saints for another 201 on the ground.

Greg Landry fired four touchdown passes, two to wide receiver Larry Walton, and completed 18 of 29 attempts for 302 yards as the Lions held off the Packers. Zeke Bratkowski passed for one Green Bay touchdown and ran for another.

Bob Griese picked apart the Bengals' defense, passing for 194 yards and two touchdowns, and Garo Yepremian booted three field goals for the Dolphins.

Jim Bakken kicked four three-pointers for the Cards, who turned an Atlanta fumble and a pass interception into touchdowns runs by MacArthur Lane and Roy Shivers.

Len Dawson rallied the Chiefs from a 10-point deficit with 188 yards in passes, including two touchdown strikes, and they thundered around and through the Chargers for another 217 yards on the ground.

The Rams, taking over leadership in the NFC West from the defending champion 49ers, lost Roman Gabriel early when the quarterback suffered a concussion, but won the game when Larry Smith exploded through the middle of the line and raced 64 yards for a touchdown.

Oakland's Ken Stabler, substituting for injured quarterback Daryle Lamonica, engineered a pair of third-quarter drives which ended his own touchdown run and a scoring pass to Ray Chester.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The second game of the World Series between the Baltimore Orioles and Pittsburgh Pirates was postponed Sunday, raising the question of whether the groundskeeper had made an error in judgment by leaving the outfield uncovered.

At the same time, the first postponement of a World Series game since 1962, caused Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Orioles' Owner Jerry Hoffberger about the starting time for Monday's rescheduled game.

Hoffberger appealing Kuhn's announcement of a 1 p.m. EDT start in an attempt "to get some people in here and to get NBC an audience," asked for a 7 p.m. EDT, starting time. But, after a half-hour session behind closed doors, Hoffberger was overruled by Kuhn.

The Kuhn-Hoffberger debate was held in the Orioles' offices under Memorial Stadium while the rain continued to beat down on a puddle-dotted outfield that had been left uncovered despite the forecast of overnight rain.

Asked whether not putting tarpaulins on the outfield was mistake, Pittsburgh General Manager Joe L. Brown said: "All of us make mistakes. I make mistakes."

Headgroundskeeper Pat Santarone, meanwhile, defended his action in leaving the outfield bare, despite the fact that it had been covered with borrowed tarpaulins when it rained last week during the American League playoffs.

"The outfield did not need it (tarpaulins)," said Santarone, whose crew responded several days before the playoffs. "It was firm. It was hard. And we were short of tarps as it was even though we borrowed some from the high schools."

"Still, we didn't need it. Besides, how many times have you seen major league teams use tarpaulins to cover an outfield?"

Besides raising the question of Santarone's decision and precipitating the Kuhn-Hoffberger discussions, the rainout cost major league baseball what usually is its largest television day of the year. It also forced cancellation of the usual off-day between games 2 and 3, and it enabled Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver to move Pat Dobson into his starting rotation.

The loss of the large national television audience guaranteed by playing on Sunday led to the Kuhn-Hoffberger discussions, but it did not affect the plans of Weaver and Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh for Monday's game.

Weaver said he still would go with righthander Jim Palmer, a 20-game winner. Murtaugh will start nine-game winner Bob Johnson in an attempt to pull into a tie after Baltimore's 5-3 opening victory Saturday.

But the rainout enabled Weaver to give Dave McNally who won Saturday's game with a three-hitter, an extra day of rest before his next day by adding Dobson to his starting rotation.

Dobson, one of the Orioles' four 20-game winners, had previously been assigned to the Baltimore bullpen. But he now is scheduled to pitch game 4 after Palmer and lefthander Mike Cuellar.

"By pitching Dobson, McNally can get an extra day's rest," Weaver pointed out. "Maybe that will make his fast ball better the next time out."

Murtaugh, however, discounted any edge for the Orioles because of the rainout.

Murtaugh also said he was sticking with his original pitching rotation. Steve Blass is scheduled to go in game 3 at Pittsburgh Tuesday when the series switches sites. He did not name a starter for game 4.

The weather forecast for Monday called for sunny skies with temperatures in the '60s and virtually no chance of rain.

The last postponement was nine years ago in the series between the New York Yankees and San Francisco Giants. During that series the fifth game in New York was postponed one day by rain and rain held up game No. 6 in San Francisco three days.

Sooners Choke Texas On Own Wishbone

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
The OU—for Oklahoma Sooners—are the "Oh, you Sooners!" as far as Darrell Royal of Texas is concerned. And that's OU as in o-u-c-h!

The eighth-ranked Sooners made a bold bid Saturday to move up in The Associated Press ratings with a devastating 475-yard 48-27 Wishbone whumping of third-ranked Texas, the most points and most yards—435 on the ground—against the Longhorns since Royal took over in 1957. "You can't compare outstanding teams," Royal said later, "but OU has the best team I've seen since I've been here. I think Oklahoma has a super football team. They have unbelievable speed ... they're going to make it tough on anybody they play."

The leading speed merchant was halfback Greg Pruitt, who breezed for 214 yards in 20 carries on the heels of a 16-for-205 performance the previous week against Southern California.

Next on tap for the Sooners is a home game against fifth-ranked Colorado, a 24-14 winner over Iowa State. Top rated Nebraska, which opened defense of its Big Eight championship with a 36-0 pounding of Missouri, visits Norman, Okla., on Thanksgiving Day.

Second-ranked Michigan broke open a close game by downing Michigan State 24-13. Auburn struggled past unheralded Southern Mississippi 27-14 thanks to another super Pat Sullivan-Terry Beasley aerial exhibition.

Alabama, No. 6, flattened Vanderbilt 42-0 with Johnny Musso setting a Southeastern Conference career touchdown mark and Notre Dame's mighty defense—16 points allowed in four games—manhandled Miami of Florida in a 17-0 victory for the seventh-ranked Irish.

Rounding out the Top Ten, ninth-rank Penn State broke a scoreless tie with eight seconds left in the first half and went on passing and 85 running—in pacing a 603-yard offensive display, most ever against a Missouri team.

Onofrio called the Huskers "a much better football team" than last season's national champs. "They've got better balance, more poise," he said. "Nebraska has everything."

Michigan State's star tackle Ron Curl cast a vote for Michigan after the Wolverines shredded the Spartans' vaunted defenses for 322 yards on the ground, with Billy Taylor rambling for 117 and two touchdowns despite a shoulder injury. The first TD came on a 38-yard scamper.

Georgia's Charlie Trippi in the 1940s.

Led by massive end Walt Patulski, Notre Dame held Miami to 111 yards total offense and sophomore Cliff Brown, replacing the injured Bill Etter in the second period, quarterbacked the Irish to victory on scoring runs by Bob Minnix and Darryll Dewan.

John Hufnagel passed 14 yards to Scott Skarzynski just before the intermission and Penn State erupted for five more scores within 11 minutes of the second half, three by fancy-stepping Lydell Mitchell, to trounce Army.

Irish Use Defense To Wilt Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Notre Dame defensive unit manhandled Miami's offense Saturday night as the undefeated Irish blanked the Hurricanes 17-0 before 64,357 in the Orange Bowl.

Sophomore Cliff A. Brown, quarterbacked seventh-ranked Notre Dame to its fourth victory. Andy Huff blasted 16 yards up the middle for one touchdown and Darryll Dewan swept six yards for the other.

Miami, now 2-2, recovered a fumble and intercepted a Brown pass in the fourth quarter but was handcuffed both times by a massive Irish defense led by 250-pound end Walt Patulski.

Notre Dame held Miami to a scant four yards total offense and no first downs during a 25-minute stretch.

played to a near standstill in the first half with Notre Dame taking a 3-0 lead on a 38-yard field goal by sophomore Bob Thomas.

Brown took command early in the second quarter after starter Bill Etter was clobbered by the Hurricane defense and limped off with a torn ligament in his knee.

Notre Dame marched 66 yards to open the third period as Coach Ara Parseghian shuffled his offensive back two at a time in the Florida humidity. Huff bulled over three Miami defenders on his 16-yard run to make the score 10-0.

Brown broke loose on a 33-yard sneak to ignite the Irish's final scoring thrust, climaxed when Dewan swept left untouched for six yards to score.

Wozneak, Poling P-P-K Winners

Joe Wozneak is advancing again in the annual Ford Punt, Pass and Kick Contest. But this year he has a partner from the Warren area in eight-year-old Jeff Poling.

In their respective age brackets both bested all competition in the zone competition at Roulette, Pa. Together, Wozneak and Poling, will advance to the district competition at Delaware Park this Saturday.

Wozneak, in the age 12 bracket, outdid his nearest competitor by 50 points, 303-253. He passed for 114 points, punted for 108 tallies, and added 81 more on his place-kicking.

Young Poling was 43½ points better than second-place Fred Mead of Port Allegany, Pa. Compiling his 140½-point total, Jeff flung the ball for 57 points, punted for 46½, and kicked the piskin for another 37.

Of the six Warren entrants at Roulette, three placed. In the age ten group, Reese Campbell finished third to account for the third area bid. Campbell had an aggregate of 143 points, 48 away from the winner, James Grumley of Johnsburg, Pa.

In the area competition, which will be held between halves of the Buffalo-St. Louis pro football game, winners of the Buffalo district, which Warren's lads belong, will compete against the best of the Syracuse district. This will take place the 31st of October, a Sunday.

Allison Cops Short National 500 Race

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison, whose Mercury trailed by almost two miles at one point, roared from far behind Sunday to win the rain-shortened National 500 stock car race before 52,000 fans at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The race was halted by L.R. Kuchler, executive manager of NASCAR when a light drizzle set in during the 357th mile.

Allison's average speed was 126.140 miles per hour despite six caution flags.

Bobby Allison finished second in a Dodge, about 10 seconds behind Allison. Third place went to Donnie Allison in a Mercury, fourth to Richard Petty in a Plymouth and fifth to Charlie Glotzbach in a Chevrolet.

Namath Returns To Jets' Roster

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Namath, recuperating from surgery for a knee injury suffered in a National Football League exhibition game is scheduled to begin working out with the New York Jets this week.

"We won't rush it, or throw him to the wolves," Coach Weeb Ewbank emphasized Sunday after he and Namath watched the Jets drop a 20-0 decision to the New England Patriots.

"Joe has worked hard on his recuperation program and is ahead of schedule," Ewbank said. "However, we'll wait for the right time before playing him."

Despite speculation that Namath will return to action Oct. 31, the star quarterback emphasized he has not set any target date.

"There's no target date—just when I get well," he said. "I'm not in that much pain, but it's still there."

With Namath sidelined, the Jets have managed only one victory in four starts. His understudy, All Woodall, completed just three of 11 passes in a heavy rainstorm Sunday.

The race started two hours late because of an overnight rain that didn't let up until nearly afternoon. The first 10 laps were run with yellow lights blinking while the heavy stockers used their exhaust systems to dry the asphalt racing surface.

But it was a hotly contested race while it lasted, with 10 lead changes among five drivers. Glotzbach, who started from the pole position after qualifying at 157.885 mph led for 119 laps.

Bobby Allison led only 70 laps but was in front the last 63 circuits of the 1.5-mile speedway.

He pocketed $18,450 for his 2 hour, 49 minute 38 second ride. It brought his season's earnings to $215,785—by far the best campaign the 34-year-old father of four has ever had.

"The track was getting awfully slick near the end," Allison said, "and I figured they would either have to slow the race under caution or stop it. Not only that, it was getting dark and had we gone much further, we would have needed headlights."

Player Becomes Piccadilly Champion

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Gary Player, winner of the Piccadilly World Match Play championship for the fourth time in seven years, has a word of advice for the youngsters trying to improve their golf.

"However much practice, double it," the little South African said after pocketing his first prize—a check for $20,400.

Player added: "I have practiced what I preach. I have been in Britain for three weeks preparing for this tournament, and in that time I have hit as many golf balls as it is humanly possible to hit."

"I have played here on this Wentworth Course at night, until it was so dark you couldn't see the ball any more."

Player defeated Jack Nicklaus, the defending champion from Columbus, Ohio 5 and 4 in a Saturday final.

The South African charged back in the afternoon, winning four holes in a row after being one down at the end of the morning round.

The face-to-face tournament, played over Wentworth's

6,997-yard, par 74, tree-lined course, has become one of Britain's most popular golf events. Crowds totaling 15,000 watched the play over the three days.

But it looks as if the organizers will have to tighten up on crowd control next year.

Arnold Palmer, from Latrobe, Pa., complained about the failure of the marshals to control the fans milling about the fairway. He said he had missed the tournament for the last two years because of crowd problems.

Neil Coles, British Ryder Cup star, made a similar complaint.

But for all this, Player and Nicklaus agreed it's a great tournament.

"One of the five best golf events in the world," Player said.

"It's got everything," said Nicklaus.

Player said the finest golf course he had ever seen was the one Nicklaus built in South Carolina. But he added: "Wentworth is still my favorite to play on, perhaps because I've won here so often."

For Boys (12-15) Who Like ACTION

A Newspaper Route Is The Thing!

● FOR BOYS who crave action and excitement, there's nothing quite like a newspaper route to give them a constructive outlet for their excess energies, and pay them well for their time and talents. IT'S daily activity that offers an enterprising boy ALL the benefits he seeks from part-time work! Money for personal expenses! Savings for college! Training in modern business methods! Experience in dealing with people! Healthful outdoor exercise and regular habits! Special incentives for boys to excel! Friendly rivalry with other live-wires! Plus helpful advice from newspaper circulation experts.

NO WONDER that our newspaper routes attract the most ambitious boys in each neighborhood. So, if activity like this appeals to your son, advise him to apply for the next route open in your vicinity. Contact our Circulation Department.

Warren, Black, Frankfurter Ranked 'Great'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren, Hugo L. Black and Felix Frankfurter are ranked as three of the 12 "great" Justices in Supreme Court history in a poll of 65 "academic experts" conducted for Life Magazine.

Four other current or recent members of the court, including Abe Fortas, are rated "near-great," with Fortas having the best chance at greatness had not a question of ethics forced him to resign in 1969.

The survey was conducted by two law professors, Albert Blaustein of Rutgers and Roy Mersky of Texas. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun were not included in the ranking because they are relatively new to the court.

The one unanimous choice for greatness was John Marshall, an early chief justice who established the court's authority to invalidate federal laws found to be in conflict with the Constitution. Close behind were Oliver Wendell Holmes and Louis Brandeis. Following were the nine other "great" justices: Warren, Black, Frankfurter, Benjamin N. Cardozo, Harlan F. Stone, Charles Evans Hughes, the first John M. Harlan, Roger B. Taney and Joseph Story.

Mansfield Reasserts Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana is moving to reassert a larger role in running of the Senate in the wake of grumbling over the methods of his assistant, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

The situation came to a head 10 days ago when Byrd lost control of an evening session that saw the adoption of an amendment dealing with chrome imports from Rhodesia—and then its reversal after several senators including Mansfield had gone home.

It was the latest in a series of incidents in which Byrd, who has been largely responsible for day-to-day scheduling of Senate business, incurred the wrath of fellow Democrats, chiefly those in the party's more liberal wing who have feared he would use the job to push his conservative views.

As a result, Byrd has been much less in evidence around the Senate in the past week—and Mansfield has been more visible.

Senate observers said they couldn't recall when Mansfield had spent as much time on the floor, keeping an eye on business.

Since Byrd became assistant leader in January by unseating Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts he has pushed hard to put the Senate on a more businesslike basis.

As a result, most amendments on key bills have had specific times set for voters after agreement on debate limitation, a procedure that makes it easy for senators to know when to come but which reduces attendance and spontaneity.

Before the chrome incident, Byrd reportedly had antagonized three fellow Democrats—Gale McGee of Wyoming, by scheduling his amendment also dealing with chrome on a day he was unable to be there; Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who claimed he had been "trapped" when he agreed to bring up an amendment on multiwarhead missiles without being told nearly half the Senate would be absent; and Joseph M. Montoya of New Mexico, when Byrd tried to persuade him to call up an antiwar amendment likely to lose before Mansfield's which was expected to be approved.

On the night of Sept. 30, the Senate had just approved by a vote of 45 to 43 an amendment by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to keep the United Nations embargo on trade with Rhodesia on what leaders had said would be the final vote of the night.

But Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., succeeding in winning two votes, 40 to 36 and 39 to 38, that reopened the issue after Mansfield and others had left.

On the latter vote, Byrd, at that point the acting leader, cast the decisive vote for reconsideration.

Fulbright then served notice he would prevent final action on the amendment by offering a series of alterations—a guarantee that final action could not be taken.

Mansfield told reporters later he felt he shared some responsibility for what had happened—and made clear he agreed with Fulbright's effort to put off final action because senators had left.

At the same time he made clear that he stands behind Byrd's efforts to expedite Senate business.

But a more visible Mike Mansfield has emerged in the Senate.

Socialists

Win Victory In Austria

VIENNA (AP) — Chancellor Bruno Kreisky's ruling Socialist party won the biggest victory in its history Sunday in Austria's parliamentary elections.

The electoral success was regarded as a personal triumph for Kreisky, 60, and his liberal policies. Interior Minister Otto Roesch said the party apparently had won a majority in the new parliament.

Nearly complete returns gave the Socialists 2,236,709 votes, or 50.2 per cent. The People's party was next with 1,913,904, or 42.98 per cent, and the Austrian Freedom party received 240,278, or 5.4 per cent.

The Communist party polled 60,705 votes, or 1.36 per cent, and a splinter group got 1,822 votes. Neither won seats in the parliament.

Roesch, who disclosed the results, said the Socialists won 93 seats, or one more than the absolute majority in the new parliament. He said the People's party won 80 seats and the Freedom party 10.

Roesch said there was a theoretical possibility that uncounted absentee ballots could reduce the Socialist seats to 92 and boost the Freedom party's to 11. The absentee ballots were expected to be counted by Tuesday.

Sunday School Explosion Kills Five

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — Four teenagers and a Bible studies teacher died Sunday when an explosion ripped through the Sunday school wing of the First Baptist Church here.

"We were listening to music," said an unidentified woman who was attending church services in the main building at the time of the blast. "Then all of a sudden we heard an explosion. A window caved in, then we saw smoke and children running into the parking lot."

The blast came just minutes before some 140 young people were to have been released from Sunday school instructions.

Authorities have blamed a faulty boiler for the explosion.

The dead, all from Marietta, have been identified as Ricky Morris, Gary Holly and Carol Joy, all ninth graders; Heather Dawson, a high school sophomore; and Michael Murphy, 30, a Sunday school teacher. Murphy was married and had one child.

J. S. Stubbs, director at Memorial Hospital, said eleven others were treated for injuries and six of them hospitalized. One was reported in serious condition in an intensive care unit following surgery.

Firemen were rushed to the explosion site to sift through the ruins for additional victims. That search was discontinued by mid-afternoon.

City officials said the main section of the church was only slightly damaged by the blast.

The site has been sealed off from the public to await the arrival of an investigative team from the state fire marshal's office.

The explosion follows by just 22 months the tragic nursing home fire on the city's West Side that claimed 31 lives and sparked a nationwide investigation into nursing home safety.

Three Killed, 33 Injured In Collision

MARSHFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Three persons were killed and 33 injured early Sunday when a Greyhound bus collided with a station wagon on Interstate 44, careened down an embankment and overturned several times.

The accident occurred about eight miles east of Marshfield at 2 a.m. as the bus was en route from St. Louis to Los Angeles.

Two bus passengers died en route to area hospitals, and an occupant of the station wagon also was killed. All of the other 32 persons on the bus were injured, several critically. A second occupant of the station wagon was injured.

The identity of one bus passenger who died was not learned immediately, and officers were sifting through personal effects to try and determine the identity.

Also killed were bus passenger Sally Heichel, 11, of Lucas, Ohio, and Pauline Garrett, 58, of Marshfield, who was in the station wagon.

Steel Sales, Production Both Down

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The recovery of sales by the steel industry has slowed, and production of raw steel declined last week, industry Week magazine said Monday.

The business publication estimated that U.S. producers poured 1,808,000 net tons of raw steel in the week ended Saturday. The previous week's total was 1,809,000 tons, a decline of 2.5 per cent from the week ended Sept. 25.

Softening of steelmaking activity is reflected in the weakening price of steel-making scrap, especially in the Pittsburgh area. Industry Week said its price composite on No. 1 heavy melting steel-making scrap slipped to $33.17 a gross ton from $33.50, the level to which it rose the preceding week.

Industry Week said that President Nixon's new economic policies have not given business a quick and strong boost and that there are no indications of a significant business upturn midway through the wage-price freeze.

It said steel makers are among those tempering their optimism on the economic outlook.

The business weekly said steel makers were anticipating a fast recovery in sales until September, but resumption of steel buying by automakers is being delayed by high steel inventories.
